WORK ON PLANE ENGINE FACTORY TO START SOON

Buick Aid Describes Plans for Plant.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

(Pictures on page 4.)

The 31 million dollar aircraft engine plant which the Buick division of the General Motors corporation will build in the Chicago area will be one of the world's largest factories, Buick officials said yesterday.

Title to the last parcel of property in the site was acquired Saturday, and work on the plant is expected to be started soon.

It will be built on a 125 acre tract at the northeast corner of North avenue and La Grange road [formerly Mannheim road], which soon is to be annexed to Melrose Park.

Dale E. Williams of the Buick organization, who will manage the plant, announced details of the project at a meeting with civic leaders in the Tavern club. He spoke as a representative of Harlow H. Curtice, Buick's president, who was unable to attend because of defense duties.

Cites Benefits to Chicago.

Citing the benefits which the plant will bring to the Chicago area, Williams said it will:

1. Give work to approximately 10,000 persons.
2. Add approximately 17 million dollars annually to the pay roll.
3. Provide work and mechanical training for approximately 4,000 boys of high school age.
4. Increase Chicago's prestige as a desirable site for industry thru the fact this area was selected by Buick officials after a study had been made of facilities in other regions.
5. Make Chicago one of the key cities in the nation's air defense program.
6. Bring a new industry to Chicago —the building of aircraft engines, an activity which is believed certain to continue after present defense activities end.

[The Chicago Downtown council, real estate men, and builders outline their programs of what Chicago should do in 1941. Story on page 5.]

Plant to Have Four Buildings.

Williams said the plant will consist of four buildings with a total of more than one million square feet, including a main manufacturing building, a power house, a personnel building, and an office building. The manufacturing building will be approximately 1,305 by 750 feet and the office building will be three stories high.

The manufacturing building will be one story high, with two stories along the front for engineering and other services.

The plant will have a capacity of approximately 500 Pratt & Whitney 1,200 horse power engines each month. Practically every part of the engine will be made here, and the engines will be assembled and tested here.

Plans Already Drawn.

Albert Kahn, a Detroit architect, already has drawn plans for the plant. Bids will be asked soon. Preliminaries are far enough along so work may be started in a few weeks. About a third of the machine tools which will be required are being made, and the rest have been ordered or soon will be.

Curtice recently said Buick's contracts with the war department—either already signed or under negotiation—involve approximately 94 million dollars for airplane engines and parts. It is expected most of this will be spent thru the Chicago plant. With plant construction and tooling costing 31 million dollars, this will make a total of 125 million dollars which will be expended for the Chicago activities.

It is estimated 30,000 persons or more in Chicago will receive direct benefit from the plant. This figure is based on the employment of 10,000 workers and figuring three persons in the average family.

Training System Sought.

"It is hoped plans may be established thru coöperation of the various educational institutions in the Chicago area to provide a good apprentice training system for boys," Williams said in discussing the part youth will take in the work.

Williams said it is planned to give boys six or eight weeks of practical training with machines. He said this might be done in schools in the area, and then the boys could be put to work under the supervision of skilled operators.

Employés will be American citizens and will be required to produce birth certificates. An office will be established here soon to start taking applications for jobs.

GREEKS SMASH FIERCE ITALIAN COUNTERDRIVE

Shell Fascists, Then Use Bayonets.

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 26.—Greek troops today delivered a smashing blow to the new Italian strategy of attack, not retreat, by crushing a furious Fascist drive north of Klisura. Heavy artillery fire and then bayonet combat drove the Italians back, it was said, after which the Greeks resumed the initiative, occupied new positions, and took at least 100 prisoners and substantial war supplies.

The Italian drive, launched in part by troops just arrived from Italy by plane, was beaten back in an hour, dispatches from the front said. Italian prisoners were said to have disclosed that the Fascist reënforcements had arrived by plane.

A "Morale" Maneuver.

A government spokesman described the attacks—that north of Klisura was only one of several launched by the Italians during the day—as a maneuver intended to bolster the Fascist troops' morale. They failed completely, he said.

[Dispatches from the Jugo-Slav-Albanian border said the Italians had attacked on both the central and northern fronts. Italian air attacks on Greek communications between Koritza, Albania, and Florina, Greece, were reported.]

The change in Italian strategy, from the waiting game with slow retreat to the counteroffensive, is attributed here to Gen. Ugo Cavallero, Italian chief of staff who replaced Gen. Ubaldo Soddu as commander in Albania on Jan. 13.

Increased Air Activity.

Coincident with Gen. Cavallero's appointment, there was greater activity by the Italian air force. The Greeks, however, say their own airmen have countered this Italian move.

Italian planes in today's action were said to have dropped many of their bombs behind their own lines when Greek fighter planes attacked. The British, continuing their assistance to the Greeks, announced a low level bombardment of Bulsa, in the vicinity of Elbasan, in which direct hits were reported scored.

Italian land forces at the front are badly disorganized and much of their personnel is scattered, it was said. Of five prisoners taken recently in one sector held by the battered "Wolves of Tuscany" division, only one actually came from that division. The others belonged to units that should have been fighting miles away.

Italian casualties in the war thus far have been estimated here at about 6,000 killed and 25,000 or 30,000 wounded.

Italians Raid Salonika.

ROME, Jan. 26 (AP).—Italian planes successfully attacked the British and Greeks in Albania, the high command reported today. The Italians said one bombing formation raided "military objectives at Salonika, hitting port works, gasoline depots, supply warehouses and the railway station. Vast fires have been started."

Brief mention was made of a sea action, the communique asserting that Italian naval units "bombarded enemy positions on the Greek-Albanian coast." Where the bombardment took place was not disclosed.

BRITISH GAIN IN AFRICA

(Map on page 2.)

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 26 (AP).—British soldiers pushing deeper into Italian Eritrea are within 10 miles of the rail center of Agordat while, far to the north, British forces are fighting the Italians at Derna, Libya, it was reported tonight.

Military sources here said the British captured 100 prisoners in the latest thrust toward Agordat, making 700 prisoners reported taken in the 10 day campaign which has seen the Italians fall back more than 100 miles.

As one of the chief cities of Italy's oldest colony, Agordat's fall would have considerable effect on the natives of Eritrea and Ethiopia who are growing bolder every mile the British advance. Military sources have declared there were no obstacles to taking the town, as the Italians still were retreating.

The British high command officially

Seize 2 in Theft of Confidential Federal Files

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26.—Justice department agents took two men into custody yesterday, according to a copyrighted story in the Washington Times-Herald, after the Times-Herald revealed the hiding place of thousands of confidential national defense documents which had been spirited out of the files of the Civil Service commission.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, expressed amazement that the confidential files could have vanished over a period of several months without detection.

Harry B. Mitchell, chairman of the Civil Service commission, said the commissioners had no knowledge of the disappearance of the documents until they read the newspaper story yesterday.

Paid by Two Germans.

According to the Times-Herald Harlan G. Crandall, 29 years old, a civil service commission employé, one of the men in custody, revealed he was paid by two naturalized Germans to remove approximately 30,000 personnel records of national defense workers from the files.

The other man in custody is Lawrence Haynes, an employé of a mailing list company. Haynes is said to have admitted that he and Crandall took the files and that he made copies of them.

[Crandall and Haynes were in custody of the department of justice overnight, but have not been charged formally with any crime. Department lawyers are studying the case to determine what charge to place against them. The papers taken have an intrinsic value and purloining of government documents is a violation of law. Whether a more serious charge is involved is a matter to be determined by government lawyers.]

Crandall, according to the newspaper, said the men also asked him to obtain the names of all employés of United States navy yards and the personnel records of all tool makers working on national defense.

Other Lists Obtained.

The two Germans already had obtained the names of several thousand civilian aviation mechanics from the civil aeronautics board files and had a complete list of every motorboat owner in the United States, Crandall said. These number more than 300,000 cards.

Among the documents taken from the Civil Service commission's files were the personnel records of virtually every Panama canal employé, with detailed descriptions of their duties, their pay and their backgrounds.

From these documents could be learned the names of men who knew every detail of the secret bombproof locks; the wiring which could immobilize the locks, and other national defense secrets.

Confidential Typists Listed.

Other documents revealed the identity of men engaged on highly confidential missions for the army intelligence. The files of the stenographers who transcribe the confidential dictation of President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull were among the recovered documents.

Personal records of men who work on the army's secret bomb sight, mechanics who installed fire control apparatus on battleships, designers who know the latest refinements in fighting airplanes, were among the documents taken from the files.

The personnel records were filled out last June by federal employés at the request of the national defense council.

Berlin Shopping Notes

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 26.—Further steps to keep businesses of all kinds thoroly under control were announced by the German government today.

Dealers who are caught selling goods above prices set by the government face heavy prison sentences. If the judge rules they acted against the good of the state, they may be sentenced to death. Those who are lucky and escape with a mere order to close their shops are reported to the labor office and must accept whatever work the office prescribes for them.

Berlin's police chief published the names of a number of dealers convicted of selling goods above official prices. Soaps, cleaning materials, and beauty creams were the articles mostly involved.

Berlin florists, who have been violently assailed by Nazi organs for profiteering, are being controled most closely. In one month, 531 of them were fined. All florists must now display price tags. One day the police uncovered 315 cases in which the florists had failed to affix the tags, which shows how ceaseless is the police activity here.

When Berlin women want to buy a new fur piece they first price the skins at a furrier's. Then they scan newspaper ads. "New Scandinavian silver foxes," priced in ads at $150 to $250 a fox are popular.

In view of such private dealing, Munich authorities announced that the guild of cap, hat, and glove makers had opened an office to estimate the value of furs being sold by private persons to private buyers. The guild of furriers in Berlin announced it is ready to perform the same service for a small charge.

Collectors must join a club of the Nazi Stamp Collector association if they want to get all the new stamps issued in Germany, according to a new postal ruling. Membership is granted "at a small cost." Special commemoration or welfare stamps of many descriptions have been issued in recent months at a price four to six times the cost of regular stamps. The extra charge went to the "cultural funds of the Fuehrer" or to winter relief and similar organizations.

Collectors rushed to buy them as a speculation. If the stamps were not available at the postoffice, collectors could pay an additional small fee and obtain them at a special collector's office. Henceforth this office will work only with the stamp collector's association. The collector who believed his hobby did not call for participation in a body supervised by the state now has to choose between his desire for independence in his leisure hours or state organized recreation.

TEN U. S. ARMY MEN START 600 MILE TREK OVER ALASKA SNOW

CHILKOOT BARRACKS, Alaska, Jan. 26 (AP).—Ten United States army men commanded by a Virginia major are learning just what moving across frozen wastes and snow covered mountains means in these latitudes. For the test, Maj. Charles H. Hart Jr., commanding the squad, collected 43 Husky dogs, four Yukon sleighs, and two toboggans.

Accompanied by Capt. Avery Cochran, four noncommissioned officers, and four privates, he set out yesterday on a 600 mile trek from this army post on the Yukon border for Fairbanks, hoping to reach that outpost in 30 to 40 days.

The party carried portable radio equipment as well as colored strips of cloth with which to signal planes in case of radio failure. Planes were expected to drop supplies occasionally. Army officials said the trip was planned to test equipment and to get first hand information on winter travel conditions.

SENATORS ALSO DEMAND DATA ON SECRET PACTS

Wheeler and Nye to Urge Senate Action Thru President.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26 (AP).—Senators Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], and Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.] announced today that they will seek a senate expression in favor of the United States' asking the warring nations to "proclaim publicly" their war aims and to reveal any secret treaties they may have signed.

Senator Wheeler [top] and Senator Nye.

To this end, they said, they will introduce a resolution tomorrow declaring the sense of the senate to be that the President request a statement of war aims from the axis powers, and from England, Greece, China, and other "belligerent governments of 1941."

In a joint statement the senators said these aims should be made clear "before this nation plunges from the brink into the holocaust of war."

Deplore Plowing Under of Boys.

"Most historians and students agree," they added, "that the treaty of Versailles provoked the present war. Before the United States goes any further along the road to war, we should have assurances from our potential allies that American boys will not be plowed under European soil every 25 years."

The Wheeler-Nye statement said that the United States learned "at tremendous cost the utter and complete futility" of the last world war, and added:

"We made our sacrifices in blood, in tears, and in dollars to make the world safe for democracy and to end all wars less than 25 years ago."

Ask Peek at Treaties.

In addition to asking all belligerent nations to state their war objectives, the resolution will propose that the President request the belligerents to make public their "peace conditions and any and all secret treaties for disposition of territorial spoils."

At the conclusion of the first world war, the resolution will say, "the American people learned that England and France had negotiated secret treaties which clearly revealed their purpose was to conquer people and territories and not to preserve democracy or to end all war."

STAGGERED REST DAYS URGED FOR DEFENSE PLANTS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26 [Special].—Staggering of the days off of workers engaged in preparedness work was recommended as a remedy for the "week-end blackout" by Joseph S. McDonagh, secretary treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, in a broadcast today. He proposed that plants operate seven days a week, with each man working six days.

President William Green declared that the federation had "enlisted for the duration of the emergency," proposed that every man should work six days a week, five days at regular rates and the sixth at overtime rates.

Green claimed production thus would be stepped up 40 per cent. He also asserted continuous operations of machines bring about economies of operation by eliminating wasteful and costly starting and stopping and in many other ways.

Mother Rescues One Son from Lake; Second Dies

Battle Creek, Mich., Jan. 26 (AP).—Mrs. Edmund Jennings, wife of a city fireman, dashed onto the ice of Goguac lake today to rescue her son, Stephen, 6 years old, who had fallen thru the ice 40 feet offshore. The mother broke thru the ice and, as she struggled out of the water, turned to see that her second son, Edmund, 4, had fallen thru. She called to Stephen to cling to an ice cake while she carried Edmund to safety. But when she turned back to aid Stephen, she saw him slip under the surface and drown. Firemen recovered the body.

Anti-War Factions Gird to Smash Dictator Bill.

Flood of Letters

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26.—Senators and representatives are receiving an avalanche of letters and telegrams urging defeat of the dictator bill and pleading for a course of action that will keep the country out of war. Representative George Holden Tinkham [R., Mass.] said that he has received 5,000 letters in the last week commending his fight on the dictator bill in the house foreign affairs committee. Senator Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.] has been snowed under in telegrams and letters since his broadcast a week ago assailing the terms of the dictator bill. More than 18,000 letters were received at Brooks' office during the week.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26.—The war and the antiwar parties in congress will come to grips over the dictator bill in the house foreign affairs committee tomorrow. It will be the beginning of a mighty battle, comparable to those over the League of Nations and Mr. Roosevelt's scheme to pack the Supreme court rolled into one.

On one side will be the Roosevelt administration striving to put thru its program of destruction of the totalitarian régimes in Europe and Asia thru unlimited material aid to Great Britain, Greece, and China—and dispatch of our armed forces overseas, if necessary, eventually to attain that objective.

Seek Action Within Law.

On the other side will be the anti-interventionists, who, while favoring aid to Britain within the limits of domestic and international law, will seek to take the dictatorship out of the dictator bill and attach amendments prohibiting acts that might involve us in the war with men, money, and ships.

Administration leaders concede that some concessions will be made to the opposition, but are confident that the measure eventually passed will permit the United States to mobilize every ounce of its vast resources to attempt to annihilate the authoritarian governments. The administration will resist amendments which would interfere with the full freedom of the government to throw into the scales our navy, our air forces, and even an army of several million men as a last resort to overcome the European and Asiatic aggressors.

Take Intervention for Granted.

The general expectation in administration circles is that it is only a question of time before the United States will be a full fledged belligerent. The preparedness measures being carried out by the war and navy departments are based upon that assumption. Precautions already have been taken to safeguard the secrecy of the movements of our warships and other armed forces when they shall be dispatched to strategic points.

The President has said that our armed forces are not to be sent abroad—that Britain needs not men but material. But he also has said that life will be intolerable to us if Hitler is allowed to remain in control of Europe, the implication of which assertion is that it may be necessary for us to go to Europe to conquer him.

No Troop Call for a Year.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill said that no large armies from overseas are needed this year. The inference is that nothing beyond some naval and air units will be asked of the United States this year; that our army will not be required till next year, by which time the British expect to gain sufficient superiority in the air to gain a foothold on the continent for an army of invasion.

The house foreign affairs committee will hear the views of the army chief of staff, the chief of naval operations and the air corps chief on the dictator bill behind closed doors tomorrow morning. Immediately thereafter the committee will begin consideration of the bill with a view to reporting

British Give Him a Film Star's Welcome.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Wendell Willkie arrived in London today on what he said was a "fact finding" trip. "I came here to get as much information as I can," the defeated Republican Presidential candidate told THE TRIBUNE at his hotel apartment tonight.

Willkie indicated he was especially interested in discovering the true figures on British war production.

He also said he was interested in what the common Briton was thinking about the war and, altho there was no air blitz tonight, he declared he hoped to spend one night in some great public shelter.

Full Measure of Hospitality.

In his apartment, Willkie and John Cowles, editor of the Minneapolis Star-Journal, and others attempted to cope with what, from casual observation, appeared to be the fan mail, telegrams, and cables of a great movie star at the peak of popularity. Willkie was invited everywhere. Britain was extending him the fullest measure of hospitality.

This spirit prevailed even at the moment Willkie was landed at a western British port by a plane from Lisbon, Portugal, earlier in the day. He was officially met, despite his self-proclaimed "private citizen" status, by Commander C. R. Thompson and Thomas Brand, representing the British government, and Herschel Johnson, American chargé d'affaires; Gen. Martin Scanlon, American air attaché, and Commander N. R. Hitchcock of the American naval staff.

Numerous reporters and photographers were on the spot and before boarding the plane which brought him to London Willkie shook hands heartily with Thompson, and, holding his light gray hat in his hand said into a newsreel microphone, "I just had a fine trip over. I feel fine. As a matter of fact I never felt better in my life."

"Sympathy" for England.

Then, more formally, he declared:

"I am very glad to be in England for whose cause I have the utmost sympathy, and for whom I am attempting to do all I can to unite the United States and to give England all the aid that is possible in its struggle for free men all over the world."

Willkie, on the flight from Lisbon to England, was so exuberant that he paced up and down in the plane and gave some amateur assistance to the pilots in charting the craft's course. Then, when nearing England, Willkie again stood up for a better view, but fell down when the plane alighted. He picked himself up, unhurt.

British newspapers stated that upon Willkie's report "to the American people" rests the strength or weakness of the opposition to President Roosevelt's war powers bill.

The Willkie party, in addition to Cowles, included Langdon Thorne, retired New York investment broker, and three American newspaper men.

British Active on Two Fronts reported its forces have captured and pushed beyond Biscia, 20 miles west of Agordat.

Reports from Kenya colony said South African forces were taking the offensive against Italian Somaliland in addition to driving the Italans out of the northern part of the province and thrusting into Ethiopia.

Reports here said the Somaliland frontier had been crossed at a number of points, chiefly around El Wak, a border town which the Italians fled after a smashing British land and air raid a few weeks ago.

In Libya, the communique said, British vanguards have made contact with Italian forces at the port of Derna, 175 miles inside the frontier from Egypt and 95 miles west of Tobruk. British armored cars first reached Derna two days ago. Infantry and guns were said since to have arrived from Tobruk and to be supporting the action.

The R. A. F. is coöperating in these widespread African campaigns. It supported the British troops advancing in the Biscia area of Eritrea, and in Libya raided Italian air fields at Maraua, Barce, and Giarabub.

Admit Blows by British.

ROME, Jan. 26 (AP).—The Italian high command in a special war bulletin today acknowledged that British soldiers were steadily hammering the Italians west of Tobruk, latest Libyan city to fall to the British.

Italian planes are coöperating "effectively" with soldiers in the Libyan fighting, the communique added, "bombing and machine gunning enemy troops and mechanized units."

It said four British planes were shot down in flames during an aerial engagement yesterday over Libya and four others were shot down in East Africa.

Mention French Base.

A mention of Bizerte, French naval base in Tunisia, by Mario Appelius, commentator on Premier Mussolini's newspaper Il Popolo D'Italia, in a restatement of Italian war aims caused foreign observers to speculate whether the axis chiefs had decided to press France to relinquish that important port. Appelius asserted England must be driven from the Suez canal, Gibraltar, Aden, Malta, and Italy must occupy Bizerte.

The Italians today backed up Nazi reports yesterday that three British warships were hit by heavy bombs in a German raid on the British Mediterranean fleet west of Crete. The communique said that one battleship and two cruisers were hit, whereas the Italians yesterday reported only one cruiser struck by bombs. [The Germans said two battleships and a cruiser were hit.]

REPUBLICANS ADOPT PROGRAM TO BOOST INTERESTS OF STATE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26.—A program to promote the interests of Illinois was adopted yesterday at a luncheon given by Republican National Committeeman Werner Schroeder to the Illinois delegation in congress. Present were Senator Wayland Brooks and all 16 Illinois Republican members of the house.

Senator Brooks proposed a coördination of efforts to obtain defense contracts and other administrative action as well as legislation for the benefit of the state. He suggested periodical meetings at which proposals could be canvassed with a view to united support by the delegation. A motion by Representative Everett Dirksen that such meetings be held every Saturday was adopted.

ITALY ROUNDS UP 'RIOT' LEADERS, BELGRADE HEARS

Reports of Disorders Are False, Says Rome.

[Copyright: 1941: By the New York Times.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Jan. 26.—Italian secret police and agents of the German Gestapo [secret police] have arrested between 20 and 30 persons, "including certain Italian army officers and Fascist officials" at Milan and Turin, foreign diplomatic sources here said tonight.

The secret police were said to have conducted raids late yesterday and last night after three Italian officers identified as generals were reported to have been shot and killed by German soldiers at Milan.

Belgrade diplomatic sources and correspondents' reports from the Jugo-Slav-Italian frontier spoke of disturbances in Milan, Turin and other industrial cities and towns as "serious and far-reaching."

[Authoritative Italians at Rome yesterday stated that foreign reports of disorders in Milan, Turin and smaller northern Italy cities were "a ridiculous invention without the slightest basis."]

Hear Italians Asked Aid.

Rioting in Milan was reported to have reached its peak yesterday afternoon when German soldiers and marines were summoned by Italian authorities to help preserve order. Reports said that the Milan telephone exchange, the postoffice, and telegraph buildings, and the railroad station were in the control of German officers, and that sentries were posted about these and other public buildings and factories. Similar reports concerning German patrols about public buildings mentioned Turin and "many factories" of northern industrial Italy.

An unknown number of dead and many wounded were reported at Milan and Turin.

200 Killed, Zagreb Hears.

A Zagreb newspaper tonight reported that 200 persons had been killed in rioting in northern Italy." The disturbances were said to be general thruout the larger cities and towns of the Po valley, and German soldiers were reported using arms against demonstrators and rioters. This information was unconfirmed.

Milan was reported somewhat quieter tonight, with German patrols on the streets, curfew at an early hour, and the Italian police and the Gestapo in major public buildings.

Many Nazis Reported in Italy.

LONDON, Jan. 26 (AP).—"Considerable numbers" of Germans are entering Italy, ostensibly as ground staffs for Nazi air units, but their main purpose apparently is to support the Fascist regime, an informed source asserted today.

TURKEY INCLUDES ALL BALKANS IN WARNING TO AXIS

Strategic Istanbul to Practice War.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Jan. 26 (AP).—Istanbul, age old metropolis in the strategic Bosporus-Dardanelles zone of European Turkey, has declared a mock state of war Jan. 28-31 for the most extensive air raid drill this city ever has experienced. These preparations coincided today with newspaper declarations that Turkey not only would defend herself against any direct axis attack, but also would act at once against any threat elsewhere in the Balkans.

Arrow Locates Istanbul.

In one case Germany was freely accused of planning a Balkan offensive thru Jugo-Slavia and Bulgaria for an attack on Salonika, Greece, to help relieve Italian forces fighting the Greeks in Albania.

Planes to "Attack" City.

In the mock air war, planes for the first time will simulate attacks on Istanbul, key point of the link between Europe and Asia Minor. Citizens will be forced to take cover when sirens sound and all traffic, including trains, will be halted.

Subterranean chambers of the famous Sultan's palace, relic of the days when the Ottoman empire still held sway, will be used as shelters.

It was learned today that two or three Italian planes recently had crashed and burned, on Turkish soil, but how they came there or what caused them to crash was not known.

The newspaper Yeni Saba asserted that any new invasion of the Balkans "we would consider an action directed at Turkey herself.

Turkey the "Second Stop."

"This Turkish policy is a threat to no one. The threat would come from those who try to occupy the Balkans. Because we consider such an act a direct threat to Turkey we would go to defend ourselves immediately.

"It is a natural conclusion for us to draw from German concentrations in Rumania that Germany intends with or without the consent of Jugo-Slavia and Bulgaria to pass thru these nations toward Salonika.

"This would not be a blow at Turkey directly, it is true, but it also is natural for us to assume that the second stop in such a campaign would be a drive into Turkey."

WILLKIE GUILTY OF A RAW DEAL, ASSERTS CAPPER

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26 [Special].—Senator Arthur Capper [R., Kas.] said in a statement tonight that Wendell L. Willkie had given those who supported him in the last election "a pretty raw deal" by approving emergency powers for President Roosevelt.

"I am truly sorry," Capper said, "that Willkie has taken the position he has. I say he has given those who supported him—in what he called before the election the Battle of America—a pretty raw deal."

Capper's statement recalled former Kansas Gov. Alf M. Landon's disagreement with Willkie's views on the pending legislation.

"The most dangerous thing in this bill," Capper said, "is the vesting of unnecessary and very dangerous powers in the hands of the President."

WARNS BRITONS: SEEK BETTER MEN IN PARLIAMENT

Writer Declares Citizens Tire of Party Hacks.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Prime Minister Churchill's recent announcement of political policy, which was interpreted to mean abandonment of election fights not only for the duration of the war but for a reconstruction period of three years afterward, aroused critical comment today.

Approbation is expressed for the proposal so far as it means no renewal of the old party game of exalting sectional interest above the nation's well being.

However, Peter Howard, political writer for Minister of Aircraft Lord Beaverbrook's Sunday Express, warned that the scheme will be rejected by the citizens if Churchill's proposal means "that party managers have agreed to perpetuate the setup whereby sons of the rich and the nobility are pushed unopposed into safe seats by Tories while trade union hacks are trotted out by Transport House [trade union headquarters] to graze away their declining years beside the Thames."

Elections Without Fights.

Since the war began 50 members of parliament—one-twelfth of the house of commons—have been elected to parliament without a struggle under the party truce. Howard charged that with three or four exceptions the new members "are all the same type of second rate men who for years have crowded Westminster benches." He described the present house of commons as "stale and stagnant," and declared that both the Tory and Labor parties believe they will rule after the war.

"Both may be wrong," he argued. "Indeed, I am convinced both will be wrong unless both come to the realization that the spirit of the people changes—that they demand new men and better men of high character coupled with judgment and ability to govern them."

In his opinion, "both parties will go bust" unless they "discard the practice of conferring parliamentary seats as a reward for past service or a prerogative of connection."

Urge 5 Man Cabinet.

LONDON, Jan. 26 (AP).—An important faction in British politics has put fresh pressure on Prime Minister Churchill for drastic revision of the government, setting up an all-powerful five man war cabinet including David Lloyd George, Britain's world war premier.

One member of this faction within the Conservative party said it was trying to get Churchill to form such a cabinet of Lloyd George; Anthony Eden, foreign secretary; Lord Beaverbrook, minister for aircraft production, and Ernest Bevin, minister of labor and national service.

The present war cabinet is composed of eight members, five of them heads of departments.

An informant, speaking for proponents of the scaled down cabinet, said all five ministers should be without portfolio, freed of departmental responsibility and political worry, and concerned only with winning the war.

U. S. BUILT PLANE BEING FLOWN TO AUSTRALIAN BASE

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 26 (AP).—A two motored Consolidated flying boat arrived today from California en route for delivery to Australia. The long range patrol bomber, which unconfirmed reports said probably would be used against German raiders in the South Pacific, was under command of Capt. P. G. Taylor of Australia. Informed sources said today's flight was but one of a series which have been made during the last month over the California-Singapore aerial route pioneered by Pan American Airways. The plane was camouflaged with olive drab and slate colored paint. It was delayed tonight by unfavorable flying weather.

FRANCE TAKES OVER CONTROL OF ARCHITECTS

VICHY, France, Jan. 26.—Architects in France will be organized on the pattern that has been applied by the Petain government to other professions. A decree published today creates a national order of architects with a supreme council of 12 members who, thru regional councils, will regulate the profession. To be a member one must be a French citizen enjoying all rights, have a diploma, or be specially admitted with the council's approval. Foreign architects may not be members, but may be permitted to work in France under certain conditions.

Stars Welcomed

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

The advent in Chicago yesterday of Deanna Durbin, 19 year old screen star, caused a near riot among an estimated 3,000 admirers who gathered to greet her.

Miss Durbin, muffled in mink and orchids and making her first trip outside Los Angeles in three years, arrived on the Santa Fe Super-Chief at 1:45 p. m., on her way to the President's birthday ball in Washington, D. C. By 1 p. m., however, the Dearborn station was almost swaying from the crowds, composed principally of adolescent girls.

When the train pulled in, they fought, screamed, and trampled each other to get near it. Men from the state's attorney's office, city uniformed police, and railroad police were helpless against this adulation.

Finally Miss Durbin was escorted out a rear door on the opposite side, but the crowd followed. In the ensuing melée, several children were injured, and Miss Durbin lost, but recovered her hat.

In Dolores Del Rio, who arrived on the Santa Fe Chief a few minutes before Miss Durbin, the crowd found a degree of solace for its later frustration. They managed to corner Miss Del Rio, pressing her back against the train until she bought her way out by signing innumerable autograph books.

BARTON BOOMED FOR HOUSE SEAT AS SIMPSON DIES

New York, Jan. 26 [Special].—Bruce Barton, who was defeated for the United States senate in the November election, is being mentioned tonight as a candidate for the house seat left vacant by the sudden death last night of Representative Kenneth F. Simpson, former chairman of the New York county Republican committee.

Barton, representative from the 17th district, resigned to run for the senate against Senator James M. Mead, a Democrat. Simpson was elected to the seat which Barton gave up. A special election will be called in the spring to fill the vacancy.

Simpson helped swing the nomination for Wendell L. Willkie at the Philadelphia convention. His death was attributed to heart disease aggravated by overwork in the Presidential campaign. He was 45 years old.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon from St. James Protestant Episcopal church.

7 NIGHTS, NO RAID, LONDONERS FEAR SURPRISE SMASH

Trawler Downs German Bomber in Fight.

LONDON, Jan. 27, Monday (AP).—Free from German bombs for seven successive nights, London today emerged with the feeling commonly expressed that "Hitler is up to no good," possibly a grand slam attack.

There was "slight air activity" over London by the enemy during the night but no bombs were dropped.

There was virtually no aerial activity over Britain all day yesterday. A single Nazi plane dropped a bomb on the northeast coast without causing damage or casualties. The crew of the trawler Galvani shot down a Junkers-88 when the plane attacked it in the North sea off the Norfolk coast.

The admiralty communique, relating this latter occurrence, said the Galvani suffered no damage or casualties. Four members of the plane crew, two of them injured, were captured. The fifth escaped. The disabled bomber came down on the shore.

British Bomb German Towns.

BERLIN, Jan. 27, Monday (AP).—DNB, official German news agency, said several "enemy" planes penetrated northern and central Germany early today, dropping incendiaries and explosives at several places. They caused only immaterial damage, the agency said, adding that weather favored the flyers.

Two British merchantmen, each of about 4,000 tons, were claimed yesterday as victims of Nazi air attack in widely separated raids on British shipping.

In one attack, a German reconnaissance plane was said to have passed over Harwich, on the English east coast, just as a convoy was leaving the harbor. Four medium bombs were claimed to have scored direct hits on the steamer, the last causing a large fire, and the vessel was listed as apparently destroyed.

In another foray, about 300 miles west of Ireland, the high command said a long distance bomber on reconnoitering patrol sank another merchant ship.

"On the British east coast," the communique added, "two merchant ships as well as war vital facilities of one harbor were bombed."

Dutch Ship Left Sinking.

New York, Jan. 26 (AP).—The 6,869 ton Netherlands steamer Beemsterdijk radioed for help today after it was left in a sinking condition by an explosion 12 miles off the British coast.

The distress signal was sent out at 3:20 a. m. [Chicago time], and 15 minutes later a second message reported the freighter was sinking. "Still sinking slowly," said a third message sent at 4:48. At 5:39 a. m. the crew abandoned ship.

The vessel, built in 1922, was owned by the Holland-America line and operated out of Rotterdam before the war.

N. Y. TEACHERS' UNION TO REVEAL ITS MEMBERSHIP

New York, Jan. 26 [Special].—After fighting for three months to keep its membership list from the scrutiny of the legislative committee investigating subversive activities in the New York City school system, the executive board of the New York Teachers union finally decided today to surrender the list to the committee.

This action came two days after a warrant had been issued for the arrest of Charles J. Hendley, president of the union, who despite a ruling of the state's highest court had refused to give the list to the committee. Hendley disappeared yesterday.

The roster sought by the committee contains the names of about 6,000 New York teachers, many of whom are said to be communists. In early hearing of the committee testimony was given indicating that communists infested the city school system.

Storm Delays U. S. Troop Landing at Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, Jan. 26 (AP).—The transport Edmond B. Alexander, bearing troops to man the American defense base here, was held in Conception bay over the week-end by a snowstorm that made it impossible for her to enter this narrow necked harbor. The liner approached St. John's yesterday but it was considered inadvisable to take her in until the weather cleared.

INDIANS HIT RULE BY ENGLAND AT LONDON MEETING

Independence League Calls It 'Crime.'

LONDON, Jan. 26 (AP).—The 11th annual Indian "Independence day" was celebrated in London at an India league meeting marked by speeches heaping abuse on British administration in India and demands for the release of political prisoners.

The audience stood and listened to the reading of the Indian "declaration of independence," which declared that British rule in India had ruined the country economically, politically, culturally, and spiritually, and that continuance of submission was "a crime against man and God."

The celebration lacked the usual messages from Indian political leaders because, the promoters explained, "They are all in jail."

Address "Comrades."

From a platform draped with the Indian nationalist colors—saffron, white, and emerald emblazoned on a spinning wheel—speakers prefaced their gibes at the British government with the salutation "Comrades!".

J. F. Horrabin, journalist and artist who illustrated H. G. Wells' "Outline of History" and Lancelot Hogben's "Mathematics for the Million," speaking for "the so-called dominant race," blamed the British working class movement for its failure to realize that imperialism and democracy are incompatible. He scornfully declared Britain, ostensibly fighting for the independence of other nationalities, failed to give India her freedom. Horrabin was a Laborite member of parliament about 10 years ago.

Says U. S. Equally Guilty.

The United States, declared Ted Bramley, a communist, was equally guilty with Britain in furthering "an imperialist war" and was only aiding her "in the sacred name of preserving democracy in Europe" so that it could be "well in at the head of the table for the shareout" after the war.

NAZI FLYER MUST FACE U. S. TRIAL; HE'S GLAD OF IT!

Expects Quick Deportation —to Germany.

New York, Jan. 26 (AP).—A wiry little Nazi flying officer claiming to have downed 14 "enemy" airplanes before his capture by the British reached the haven of the German consulate in New York today anxious to return to his fatherland so "I can shoot down some more."

Exuberant despite twinges from his bandaged ears—frozen in crossing the St. Lawrence river in subzero weather during an escape from a Canadian prison train—26 year old Baron Franz von Werra expressed delight at the good fortune which brought him to a nation where his deportation to Germany is probable.

International law rules out his return to Canada by American authorities.

Confident He'll Return.

He was supremely confident of eventual return to his homeland.

"I'll find my way back to Germany as well as I found my way out of prison camps three times," he said, grinning.

Talking easily in English as he rode by train toward his first glimpse of New York City, the young Nazi airman expressed belief the war would be won by Germany some time this summer.

"I'm so sure of that as I'm alive," he said, adding: "And it's not right for me to stay in this country while my comrades are fighting and dying. "That's why I must get back."

Won't Discuss Escapes.

He avoided all questions concerning military matters and details of his escapes, saying he was under strict orders from "our representatives in New York." At Grand Central station he was hastened away in a cab by an unidentified person, apparently from the German consulate. Later he was taken to the Astor hotel in Times Square.

The airman was at liberty under $5,000 bond posted by the German consulate within two hours after his arrest and detention at Odgensburg, N. Y., near the Canadian border, on a charge of illegal entry into the United States. A federal grand jury in Albany, N. Y., will hear his testimony on Thursday.

Captured Last September.

Forced down in England last Sept. 7, Von Werra was made a prisoner of war but escaped twice. It did him no good, he said, "because I couldn't get out of the country."

Subsequently he was shipped to Halifax with other prisoners. While en route he sold all his valuables to British sailors on the prison ship in line with a new plan he had for escape to the United States.

"You know," he said, "without money, nothing can be done in America. So the first thing I did was get as much as I could by selling things."

Does the "Impossible."

That was as much as he would say about his escape. From others, it was learned that he crossed the St. Lawrence in an open rowboat near Galoup rapids—a feat which natives thought impossible without help.

Von Werra asserted there was no comparison between this war and the world war.

"This war is the mistake of the British and French staffs," he said. "They have used the same tactics of 1918. But we have prepared for modern war."

Italian Bomber Lands in Jugo-Slavia; Seized

TOKIO'S FOREIGN CHIEF FLAYS U. S. POLICY IN PACIFIC

Charges Aid to China Only Prolongs War.

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 26.—Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka today attacked President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull as war mongers in the diet [parliament].

He charged that Roosevelt and Hull plainly intimate that Britain is America's first line of defense in the Atlantic and Australia and New Zealand in the Pacific.

Such an idea, he said, cannot but hamper any attempts to bring peace to the world. He asked what has happened to the Monroe Doctrine.

"Time for Negotiations Passed."

"The time for settling misunderstandings with the United States thru negotiations has passed," Matsuoka declared. "It is useless to talk further with the Americans. It is not that they cannot understand, but that they won't."

He said that if the United States persists in regarding Australia and New Zealand and other regions in the western Pacific as its first line of defense and thus menace Japan's position without reflecting on their error, there is nothing Japan can do but defend itself.

Matsuoka charged that by helping China, the United States merely was prolonging restoration of peace in Asia. He reiterated that "we must safeguard the western Pacific, otherwise it is useless to talk about peace with the United States."

Japs Claim Capture of Miyang.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 27, Monday (AP).—The Japanese army in a new offensive in central China has recaptured Miyang, in southern Honan province, killing 1,200 Chinese, Domei, Japanese news agency, reported today. The Japanese occupied Miyang once before preparatory to an advance toward Ichang, but later abandoned it.

The news agency said the troops also were spreading over southwestern Honan in an effort to crush 100,000 Chinese soldiers who have been operating between the Peiping-Hankow railway and the Han river.

The Japanese, operating in 10 columns, were said to have pierced the first Chinese lines. The offensive was launched from Singyang, Honan province.

Foreign military observers said the last Japanese operations in that vast interior zone ended in a Chinese victory last October. These sources said Japanese casualties numbered between 15,000 and 20,000.

Police said Fisher was struck by another car, driven by Glen Swanberg of St. Charles, when he alighted after the first crash.

Corp. Chester D. Rule, 22, of Chicago, who was sationed with the United States marines in San Diego, Cal., was killed yesterday in an automobile accident there, according to word received here.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 77 persons had died in Cook county traffic since Jan. 1. Of these 58 were killed in Chicago, where 1,574 were injured during the same period.

CHICAGO-MIAMI TRAIN WIPES OUT FAMILY OF FIVE

Dalton, Ga., Jan. 26 (AP).—A family of five and a woman companion were killed here today when their automobile was struck by a Chicago-Miami passenger train of the Southern railway.

The dead were Ivan Ledford, 27 years old, of Ellijay, Ga.; his wife, 24; their three children, ages ranging from 2 to 7, and Miss Annie Tedford, sister of Ivan.

Police said the engine of the Southern railway's "Sunbeam" struck the automobile broadside.

STUDY PART U. S. ROADS WILL PLAY IN DEFENSE PLANS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 26.—Assembling here today are 5,000 leaders of the country's billion dollar a year highway industry. They are delegates to the 38th annual convention of the American Road Builders' association, opening tomorrow and continuing thru Friday.

The delegates—federal, state, and local officials; contractors, material, and equipment men—are coming here with two thoughts uppermost. They want to learn what part their industry will play this year in the national defense program. They want to learn the engineering, financial, and administration methods that have advanced this metropolitan area in the construction of deathproof urban and rural highways.

Tomorrow, Hal G. Sours, state highway engineer of Ohio and president of the association, will preside at a forum on roads and motor transportation as they relate to national defense. Scheduled speakers include John M. Carmody, administrator of the federal works agency, and United States Senator Sheridan Downey.

SOUTH AMERICAN LANDS SEEK NEW TRADE OUTLETS

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Jan. 26.—A 10 day conference of delegates from five South American republics will open here tomorrow to consider a program for intensifying commercial relations to offset effects of the war in Europe. Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Paraguay, and Uruguay will be represented by delegates, and the ministers of Chile, Peru, and the United States will be official observers.

The delegates will form three commissions to study commerce and transit, customs, and economic projects in an 11 point program.

All efforts heretofore to open permanent commercial routes among the South American republics have been defeated by tariff walls and other obstacles.

NATIONAL GUARD STAFF HAS FULL WORK SCHEDULE

Staff officers of the 33d division, Illinois National Guard, have prepared a full schedule of activities for the next three weeks preparatory to induction into federal service Feb. 24.

Gen. L. J. McNair.

Maj. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, chief of staff of the army's new general headquarters for the training of the field forces, will arrive by plane Wednesday to confer with Maj. Gen. Samuel W. Lawton, commander of the 33d division.

Gen. Lawton plans an inspection late this week of facilities at Camp Forrest, Tenn., where the guardsmen will be sent for training, before he makes his final preinduction plans. Altho induction has been set for Feb. 24, it is expected the men will not leave for camp until about March 15.

An infantry insructors' school will open Feb. 3 in the 124th field artillery armory, at which 76 infantrymen, one from each of the 76 companies in the division's four regiments, will meet daily for instruction in infantry tactics. A similar school is planned for artillery officers, Gen. Lawton said.

TRADE LEADERS COMPILE LIST OF CITY'S NEEDS

Put Airports and Transit Problems at Top.

What does Chicago need most to go ahead in 1941? What does your business need to go ahead? What can you do to help Chicago? What can Chicago do to help you? The story below is another of a series giving the answers.

An extensive program for the betterment of Chicago and improvement of the loop area during 1941 was announced last night by the Downtown council, a group of 100 prominent business men. Activities of the group are supported by leading civic organizations.

The council was organized in 1938 as an improvement group because of the concern over the failure of Chicago to keep pace with local transportation advances in other cities and the decline of real estate values in the so-called blighted areas. The council's annual program is worked out by committees headed by leaders in the manufacturing, trade, and transportation fields. George Richardson, trustee of the Marshall Field estate, is chairman of the council.

Back Air Development.

One of the chief aims outlined for 1941 is "support of all undertakings to make the city one of the country's great aviation centers." This calls for "prompt completion of the Chicago airport enlargement project, erection of an airport terminal building, construction of a high speed direct highway from the loop to the airport, and a study of the need and location of other airports."

Number one plank on the council's program is settlement of the traction problem in a manner which will provide an adequate local and rapid transit system to serve the entire city. Other planks are:

Start construction of a west side superhighway and complete plans for superhighways to the north, northwest, south, and southwest.

Provide parking facilities to serve the needs of downtown and superhighway traffic.

Want Subway Extensions.

Start construction of subway extensions to the west under Lake and Congress streets, and complete a comprehensive subway extension plan.

Encourage railroads to extend and improve their suburban train service and to develop their freight and passenger terminal facilities.

Select a location and plan for the financing and construction of an adequate convention hall.

Build a modern sewage system in the loop district.

Eliminate smoke and noise nuisances.

Coöperate with other organizations to bring new business to Chicago.

Members of the executive committee of the council, serving with Chairman Richardson, are Chauncey B. Borland, Walter L. Gregory, Arthur B. Hall, Lyndon H. Lesch, A. H. Mellinger, Philip F. W. Peck, John T. Pirie Jr., Emil A. Stake, Wallace J. Stebbins, Elmer T. Stevens, and Frank M. Whiston.

URGE CITY TO CLEAN HOUSE

Real estate men and builders, asked yesterday for their views of what Chicago needs in 1941, said city and county authorities could do much to push the city ahead. Here are some of the measures suggested, including a number which coincide with the program of the Downtown council:

1. Reduce real estate taxes; curtail expenditures, and collect delinquent taxes.
2. Condemn and forfeit tax delinquent property and convert some of it into parks, playgrounds, and parking space for public use.
3. Improve the transportation system; reduce the cost of parking cars.
4. Facilitate the rehabilitation of slum areas.
5. Recast the building code and the zoning law and develop a practical city plan.
6. Eliminate government competition in the real estate business.
7. Encourage the establishment of new factories in the Chicago area.
8. Curb saloons and gambling joints.

"Chicago must clean house, figuratively and literally, and all of the other five 'housekeepers'—the county, sanitary district, park district, board of education, and forest preserve—must take a hand with the mop," said Morgan L. Fitch, president of the Chicago Real Estate board. "Chicago needs men who will roll up their sleeves and attack the the problems of metropolitan life."

Newton C. Farr, president of the National Association of Real Estate boards, urged a program for reconstructing the city's older residential areas and stimulating business in the central district.

Heavy Snowfall in Chicago District

Glen E. Smith Jr. taking a look at the snow covered trees in front of his home at 2 Milburn park, Evanston.

Snow Bars Cold

(Picture on back page.)

Chicago was covered last night by 6.9 inches of snow—the heaviest snowfall in almost two years. But Forecaster R. E. Gumpf said all may be happy about it. The snowstorm prevented a cold wave that has been threatening Chicago for days. Don't be too happy, tho. He said there would probably be more snow tomorrow or Wednesday. The heaviest previous snowfall of the winter was Nov. 26, when there was 5.7 inches.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

REVOLT LEADERS IN RUMANIA PAY WITH THEIR LIVES

Iron Guard Terrorism Believed Broken.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Jan. 26 (AP).—Peace once again settled over Rumania today and leaders of the insurrection began to pay, some with their lives, the price of a rebellion that failed.

Some high ranking Iron Guard leaders were said to have committed suicide. They were followers of vanquished Vice Premier Horia Sima to whom the dictate had come from victorious Premier General Ion Antonescu:

"You rebels! If you are true Iron Guardists punish yourself with true legionary punishment or otherwise you may be sure that I shall apply mass punishment myself."

Sima was reported facing court martial after being arrested in a sleeping car in flight.

Believe Antonescu Will Stay.

Political circles expressed belief that Antonescu would succeed in keeping order and in preventing terrorist groups of the Iron Guard from ever reorganizing again. The Rumanian army has seized all archives of the movement and is in possession of information necessary for a complete cleanup.

Churches were thronged with Rumanians praying that peace will be permanent in their country which in the last year has suffered from earthquake, dismemberment, terror and revolution.

Hundreds of Jews massacred in the fierce outburst of hatred were given mass funerals. Over Iron Guard youths who died in the bloody attempt at coup d'état, however, no ceremonies were permitted.

Soldiers' Funeral Today.

Thirty Rumanian army officers who were mowed down by the guns of the rebels will be given a solemn military funeral and burial as national heroes tomorrow. An undetermined number of soldiers also will be buried tomorrow.

The municipal hospital and morgues still hold unclaimed dead. Many are Iron Guardists whose relatives hesitate to appear to identify them.

Former Health Minister Iasinski was among those reported executed under a new emergency law exacting death of any one found with firearms. One version was that he appeared at Antonescu's office on Friday declaring he wished to see the dictator to pledge his loyalty, that he was searched in accordance with military procedure before being admitted and that a revolver was found strapped to his leg.

Generals Tour Hospitals.

Antonescu, accompanied by German Minister Baron Manfred von Killinger, German Gen. Haensel, and two Rumanian generals now heading the Bucharest and state police, made a tour of hospitals and morgues to observe how seriously victims' had been maltreated. They found that even gold teeth had been removed from many bodies.

Iron Guard district headquarters and all public buildings were under heavy guard.

FORMER KAISER, 82 TODAY, WILL REMAIN IN EXILE

Hale and Hearty After 22 Years at Doorn.

DOORN, The Netherlands, Jan. 26 (AP).—Wilhelm II., world war emperor of Germany, will observe his 82d birthday tomorrow without a thought of leaving this haven to which he fled after abdicating more than 22 years ago.

Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm II.

"Old trees cannot be transplanted," the white bearded ex-monarch is fond of saying.

His intimates say he is serenely content to remain where he is. The former emperor is hale and hearty and he takes deep interest in the war altho it has affected him directly but little. The sole visible change is the presence of German, instead of Dutch, guards at the entrance to the estate.

Modest Observance.

All the same, the birthday observance tomorrow probably will be the most modest in his long and eventful life—because of the war. Besides the Kaiserin Hermine, who shares his exile, only three near relatives were able to come over from Germany. They were his fourth son Prince August Wilhelm [known as Auwi], his grandson, Prince Franz Joseph [son of the kaiser's late fifth son, Joachim], and Franz Joseph's newly-wed wife, Princess Henrietta.

The only other out of town guest was Gen. Wilhelm von Dommes, for many years chief administrator of Hohenzollern properties in Berlin.

Gets Many Messages.

Except for the fact that he won't take his customary turn at the wood chopping block, the former kaiser's birthday will, for the most part, be marked by the same regularity as have all the other days of his long exile.

The entire Doorn household, from the former monarch to the charwoman, has been asked to assemble in the parlor at 9:30 a. m. for a ceremony of congratulation, followed by family devotions.

Sheaves of telegrams and letters awaited the birthday celebrant, but their number was small compared with the basketsful he received in peace times.

STRATTON LAYS U. S. PLIGHT TO 'CERTAIN PERSON'

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26 [Special]. — Charges of unpatriotism against persons who "disagree with the edicts of a certain individual and his highly paid 'idea men,'" and who "dare to criticize their past whims and theories" constitute the chief danger to American democracy, Representative William G. Stratton [R., Ill.] said tonight.

Stratton was one of four speakers on the American Forum of the Air, broadcast nationally by the Mutual Broadcasting system. The others were Norman Thomas, Socialist party leader; Col. Henry Breckinridge, former assistant secretary of war, and Senator Claude Pepper [D., Fla.], administration warhorse.

"This intolerant attitude," said Stratton, "has caused bitterness and suspicion to grow in widening scars between people of different faiths, races, and economic status. This cultivation of intolerance is closely connected with a hysteria now sweeping our land—a hysteria of fear and war."

COUNT CSAKY, 46, FOREIGN CHIEF OF HUNGARY, DIES

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Jan. 27, Monday (AP).—Count Stephan Csaky, foreign minister of Hungary during the past two critical years, died early today after an illness of six weeks. He was 46 years old and the youngest foreign minister in Hungary's history. He had been ill since mid-December when he was stricken while aboard a train bringing him home from Belgrade where he had just signed a friendship agreement between the Hungarian and Jugo-Slav governments.

Count Csaky was a career diplomat. He entered the service as a legation attaché in 1919. Later he was minister to Spain and chargé d'affaires for Spain and Portugal. He was chief of the cabinet of Koloman von Kanya's foreign ministry in 1938 and in this capacity was an observer at the Munich conference. When Premier Bela Imredi presented his revamped cabinet in December, 1938, Count Csaky held the portfolio of foreign minister.

A bachelor until he was 45, he married 28-year-old Countess Maria Chorinsky, descendant of a distinguished Moravian family. Their marriage was only eight months old when Csaky died.

FEARS DICTATOR BILL WOULD KILL OUR DEMOCRACY

O. K. Armstrong, former chairman of the foreign relations committee of the American Legion, said last night that adoption of President Roosevelt's dictator bill would result in the destruction of our democracy. He spoke at a rally in the Auditorium theater of the Citizens' Keep America Out of War committee. Other speakers included George R. Cless Jr., executive secretary of the New York State Chamber of Commerce. Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.], who was scheduled to address the rally, was unable to attend because of business in Washington.

ANTI-WAR GROUP GIRDS TO SMASH DICTATOR BILL

Open Fight to Finish in House Committee Today.

it to the house before the end of the week. It will be debated in the house and passed with amendments the following week. In the meantime the senate foreign relations committee will start hearings on the measure tomorrow, with the prospect of its passage by the senate, still further amended, about a month hence.

Fish Lists Amendments.

Representative Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.], ranking minority member of the house foreign affairs committee, said tonight that the opposition to the bill will offer the following principal amendments:

1. To prevent the President from giving away our navy.
2. To prohibit use of our warships to convoy cargoes over seas.
3. To limit the delegation of authority to one year.
4. To limit lending of money or material to 2 billion dollars.
5. To eliminate the provision granting belligerent ships the use of our ports as naval bases.

"It is regrettable," said Congressman Fish, "that the administration did not permit us to obtain the testimony of our army and navy experts on the state of our defense, tho this is supposed to be a defense measure that we have before us. Col. Lindbergh was the only expert whose views we were allowed to hear.

Lindbergh Disputes Knox.

"Secretary of the Navy Knox said we have 2,500 up-to-date fighting planes. Col. Lindbergh said we have only several hundred. What we want are the facts. If Col. Lindbergh is right, it would appear that we have given away our planes and virtually are defenseless—a very grave situation.

"The hearings, however, have established certain facts. One is that this is not an emergency measure. There was much talk that the crisis for Britain will come in the next 90 days, wherefore this bill must be passed without delay to save Britain from disaster. But the testimony showed that this bill, if passed today, would not effect the delivery to the British of any military material in the next three months that would not be delivered without such legislation. Material affected by this bill cannot be delivered before 1942.

"It also was brought out that with 10,000 fighting planes and bases in South America, the United States would be impregnable to attack."

16,500 RECRUITS BY MARCH 1 IS 'AIR CORPS GOAL

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26 (AP).—The army asked for 16,500 volunteers today for the expanding air corps and related branches, stressing that men registered for the draft were eligible.

Instructions to recruit this number for three year enlistments by March 1 were dispatched to the nine corps area commanders in the continental United States.

The newest recruiting campaign started a drive almost to double the strength of the army air forces by next July, when it is hoped 10,100 officers, 15,000 flying cadets and 151,000 enlisted men will be in service. At present officers number 6,180, and there are 7,000 flying cadets and 83,000 men.

Regardless of the rapid expansion, there is to be no reductions in qualifications for ground crews or candidates for training as pilots. Men with at least a high school education still are sought for enlistment.

LUXURY TRAIN IS DERAILED; NO PASSENGERS HURT

Oroville, Cal., Jan. 26 (AP).—The luxurious Exposition flyer of the Western Pacific railroad ploughed into a huge boulder blocking tracks in the Feather river canyon today, derailing the locomotive and baggage car, but injuring no passengers.

A baggage man was missing, and authorities expressed fear the unidentified man may have been trapped in the baggage car, which nosed into the rain swollen river after breaking away from the rest of the train. The locomotive plunged partially down the canyon wall and came to rest close by the water.

The engineer and fireman saved their lives by jumping.

Heavy rains were blamed for a slide which carried the huge boulder onto the tracks.

Loesch Sees Plot to Confuse America in Dictatorship Bill

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Frank J. Loesch, general chairman of the Church League of America, yesterday accused supporters of President Roosevelt's dictator bill of deliberately trying to confuse the public by seeking to make it appear that unlimited powers for the President are necessary to give aid to Britain.

In a letter to pastors on the league lists, Loesch asserted that all necessary aid to England is possible without the dictator powers which he said only a few Americans want. Loesch said the letter was made necessary by many queries received at the league office, 53 West Jackson street.

Dictator Not Needed, He Says.

Loesch also made public many letters received from all sections of the country in response to the league's recent communications.

"Nearly every American wants the United States to aid England in her war on Hitler and Hitlerism in every way consistent with American principles," the Loesch letter said. "But no real American wants to see the dictatorship principle established in the United States. Quick and effective aid can be sent to England under existing constitutional authority and present democratic procedures.

Propagandists Are Accused.

"I accuse the propagandists for house bill 1776 of deliberate attempts to confuse the American people by making them believe aid to Britain requires dictatorial powers for President Roosevelt. That is plain perversion of the facts. We do not need to establish Hitlerism here to help England fight Hitler over there.

"We of the Church League of America call upon all Americans to protest this perversion of the facts. Let us condemn this ruse of the clique in Washington which makes laudable provisions for aid to Britain the vehicle for the perpetration of contemptible trickery and deceit on the American people. If the Washington clique thinks the people of the United States want a dictator, let congress vote on that issue separately. The dictatorship issue should be dissociated from the aid to Britain bill."

Excerpts from sample letters to the league from prominent clergymen across the nation follow:

BISHOP WILBUR E. HAMMAKER, Methodist area of Denver, Colo.—We are swept along by amazing propaganda. I am disturbed that Wendell Willkie swallowed the whole war program of the President. Can we save democracy by plunging headlong into dictatorship? I am lending my influence to putting the brakes on the Presidential plan.

THE REV. W. J. THOMPSON, Congregational pastor, Seattle, Wash.—I have written to congress protesting the granting of such sweeping powers to the executive and urging that congress exercise its constitutional prerogatives.

Praises Work of League.

DR. D. ELLIS EVANS, Congregational pastor, Cleveland Heights, O.—I do not believe that congress should surrender its authority, but I am for the United States rendering every possible aid to Britain, Greece, and China. I believe the Church League of America is doing a good piece of service.

DR. WILLIS B. KILPATRICK, pastor of First Presbyterian church, Greenfield, O.—I am in hearty favor of having the country do all within its power to aid Britain defend the democratic principles. I firmly believe that the way in which that aid is extended should be safeguarded; that it should be extended thru proper congressional action. There does not seem to be reasonable justification to grant our chief executive such unlimited power as he has been bold enough to ask in the current aid-to-Britain bill.

George W. Robnett, executive secretary of the league, said commendations on the league's fight against the bill increase in volume daily.

HARVESTER SHOP STRIKE SETTLED IN EAST MOLINE

International Harvester company officials in Chicago announced last night that the strike which halted operations at the company's East Moline works is ended. Despite a snowstorm, many of the strikers attended a mass meeting at which they voted 244 to 118 to return to work. The plant will be open today, but officials said it probably would be Wednesday before they can put all 1,400 workers back at their tasks.

The strike began Jan. 16 when an independent union which had a contract with the company walked out. C. I. O. union workers joined the strike the next day. The C. I. O. organization announced yesterday it would insist on exclusive bargaining rights. Company officials said they are hopeful of an early election to determine the bargaining agent.

C. I. O. leaders in East Moline notified the C. I. O. local in the company's Chicago tractor works that they do not wish the local to strike, despite its recent strike authorization vote, pending reopening of negotiations here.

25,000 EVERY DAY JOIN RISING TIDE OF DICTATOR FOES

Letters pouring into the offices of the Chicago chapter of the America First committee almost unanimously brand President Roosevelt's aid to Britain bill as a measure which means dictatorship and war, committee leaders said yesterday.

An average of 25,000 signatures protesting the bill are being received daily at America First headquarters, Miss Cornelia Howe, secretary of the Chicago chapter, said. The names are being affixed to petitions and sent to the congressmen from the district in which each person lives.

Leaders said that letters picked at random show this conviction: If congress enacts the lend-lease bill, it will be voting not only for a United States dictatorship, but for this country's entry into the European war.

Scheduled flights will begin shortly after the survey. The new route is via Bolama, Portugese Guinea; Port of Spain, Trinidad, and San Juan, Puerto Rico. URGES CONGRESS TO KILL BILL TO SET UP DICTATOR

Notre Dame U. Professor Blasts F. D. R. Scheme.

Plymouth, Ind., Jan. 26 (AP).—Dr. John A. O'Brien, University of Notre Dame professor, today characterized the pending aid to Britain bill as "alien to every instinct of American democracy," and asserted, "We ask our representatives . . . to kill the whole bill and bury it beyond all possibility of resurrection."

Father J. A. O'Brien.

Speaking at a northern Indiana meeting sponsored by the roll call of American women and backed by several civic, women's, religious, and patriotic organizations, the Rev. Dr. O'Brien declared:

"While calling on us to fight dictatorship abroad, the bill would set up one at home. Like the peoples of Europe, we too would be led like sheep to the slaughter, as we were in the nightmare of 1917."

American youth, he said, would be "dragged into the flames of Europe's strife if the 90 per cent majority who oppose our entrance into this foreign war do not abandon their silence and helplessness and thunder their opposition into the ears of congress and the President.

"A noisy 10 per cent minority is busy spreading the propaganda that this is 'our' war, that our frontiers are in Europe and Asia, and that we should pour out our treasure and spill the blood of millions of the youth of America, to quench the flames of the congenital hatreds and the never ceasing feuds of Europe."

Dr. O'Brien said that "the touchstone of our foreign policy should be what best protects the lives and welfare of the American people. By remaining at peace we can render the largest service to the oppressed people of other lands."

Dr. O'Brien proposed that the United States "work ceaselessly to bring the warring nations to the conference table to ascertain their minimum terms for peace."

Following Father O'Brien's address the audience adopted a resolution directing Mayor J. Abner Bowman of Plymouth to send the following telegram to Senator Raymond E. Willis [R., Ind.], Senator Frederick Van Nuys [D., Ind.], Senator Walter F. George [D., Ga.], chairman of the senate foreign relations committee; Representative Charles A. Halleck [R., Ind.], and President Roosevelt:

"Six hundred twenty-five citizens at a meeting here today demand that House bill 1776 be killed in its entirety."

ESCAPED ASYLUM INMATE, FREE 8 YEARS, KILLS GIRL

Surrenders to Minister and Confesses.

Omar Longtin, 29 years old, an escaped inmate from the Kankakee state hospital for the insane, early yesterday bludgeoned and knifed a young woman and then raped her. The murder took place in Bradley, a town of 2,100 just north of Kankakee in Kankakee county.

The victim of his fiendish attack was Miss Norma Altenbrunn, 22 years old, who lived in the Woodlawn park district in Bradley. Longtin confessed the crime to Sheriff Dan Bergan and State's Attorney Joseph Tolson of Kankakee county after he surrendered to the Rev. H. C. Short of the United Brethren church in Bradley, which he and the young woman attended.

Tells of His Jealousy.

Longtin said he decided to kill Miss Altenbrunn after he heard her talking with her mother about "another fellow." He said he plotted the crime while waiting in the young woman's home Saturday night to take her to a movie in Kankakee.

Longtin said he and Miss Altenbrunn attended the movie and then returned to his mother's home in Bradley where they had a light supper. Then they started for the young woman's home. At the corner, Longtin said, he picked up a brick, knocked the girl unconscious and carried her into a nearby field. There he slashed her throat with a bread knife and then attacked her.

Confesses to His Mother.

Leaving the girl to die, Longtin said he returned home, told his mother of the murder and then left the house with a .22 rifle, saying he intended to kill himself. He said he lost his nerve and instead surrendered at the parsonage. Sheriff Bergan said the rifle was not loaded.

Hospital records show that Longtin, an unemployed factory worker, had been confined at the state hospital on several occasions for recurring attacks of dementia precox and had escaped twice from the institution. His last escape was July 4, 1932. Dr. G. W. Morrow, hospital superintendent, said Longtin's mother had written hospital authorities that her son was at home and had asked that he be considered on parole. Dr. Morrow said nothing more was done on the case.

2 KILLED, 9 HURT IN FIRE; FAULTY HEATER BLAMED

Two persons were burned to death, and nine others, including two firemen, were injured yesterday by fire which swept a frame building at 4500 Prairie avenue. Forty Negro residents were driven to the street. Willie Bryant and Miss Gussie Freeman, both colored, were burned to death. The firemen injured were Patrick O'Donnell of truck 15, injured when a ladder broke, and Alfred Slater, cut by broken glass. Chief Lawrence Owens of the 16th battalion estimated the damage at $2,000 and blamed the fire on a defective oil heater.

Jilted Suitor Writes Note, Fails in Suicide Attempt

Leonard Golden, 26 years old, who said he is a deserter from Fort Sheridan, wrote out his death notice last night, placed it in his pocket, and then went to the home of his former sweetheart, Miss Ruth Kenway, at 957 Montana street. When he learned she was not home, he swallowed the contents of a small bottle of iodine. The young woman's family called police who took him to the Alexian Brothers hospital. Physicians said he would recover. Golden, whose home is at 3254 Diversey avenue, told police he was despondent because Miss Kenway had jilted him.

2 USHERS ROUT PAIR OF BANDITS IN MOVIE HOLDUP

Paul Moss and Harlow Naas, ushers at the Dearborn theater, 40 West Division street, routed two bandits last night who attempted to hold up Vincent Arvey, the manager, in his office off the theater lobby.

The bandits walked into the lobby and ordered Moss to lead them to the manager's office where Arvey was counting the theater receipts.

When Arvey opened the office door, Moss turned and hit one of the bandits with his fist. The second bandit struck Moss on the head with the butt of his revolver. Naas came to Moss' aid and both bandits fled after firing several shots, one of which ricocheted and grazed Arvey's right ankle. Patrons in the theater were unaware of the attempted holdup.

14 SOLDIERS HURT AT N. Y. FORT AS BOILER BLOWS UP

Victims All Members of Harlem Regiment.

Oswego, N. Y., Jan. 26 (AP).—Fourteen Negro soldiers of Harlem's 369th antiaircraft regiment were burned or injured tonight when fire swept the supply wing of the administration building at Fort Ontario.

Exploding ammunition endangered soldiers fighting the fire while an east wind kept the flames away from the new $500,000 65-building cantonment completed at the fort last week.

Col. Chauncey Hooper, commander of the 369th, said that the fire followed a boiler explosion in the wing at 8:30 o'clock tonight. One soldier said that the blast sounded like the firing of a cannon and that it was followed quickly by a red haze.

Building Near Officers Quarters.

The building was situated at the rear of a line of officers quarters. The front of the building is only 50 feet from buildings of the new cantonment.

Col. Hooper said all supply and pay roll records of the regiment and fort were lost. He added that the ammuntion exploded in the fire was for rifles and small arms and not for the antiaircraft batteries fired by the regiment. He said that only one of the injured men was in critical condition.

During the height of the blaze, which was brought under control in two hours, rifle ammunition stored in the building exploded in a continuous barrage, but the Colonel said none of the 1,400 men in the regiment was injured by those blasts. Most of the soldiers suffered burns or injuries attempting to save records and a new set of colors.

The base was cut off from the outside by wire and radio for five hours. Origin of the blaze, which started in the radio room, was not determined.

THE FORGOTTEN COUNTRY.

Saturday's hearing before the house committee on foreign affairs was given over to witnesses who favored bill No. 1776 to create a war dictatorship.

It is impossible to read the accounts of the testimony without realizing to what an extent American interests and American welfare have been pushed into the background by the proponents of the bill. Their hearts are bleeding, but not for America. If they had been concerned primarily for America they would have concentrated upon estimating what the consequences of the enactment of the measure would be for this country. They would have attempted to balance American gains against American losses, American advantages against American disadvantages. That they did not do.

Gen. O'Ryan favored the bill and favored a declaration of war. Like him, all advocates of American participation are for the bill because they recognize in it a long step in the direction they desire to take. Gen. O'Ryan wants us to go to war to raise morale in Britain, to weaken morale in the axis countries, and to encourage revolt in the occupied lands. Evidently in his view the American congress legislates not for America but for the world outside America.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, former minister to Norway, said she had been a pacifist but with Norway in mind she now believes that war has its justifications. She, too, is for No. 1776. Miss Dorothy Thompson, Brooklyn's Boadicea, is for war "if necessary" and for the bill.

Mr. Bullitt, former ambassador to the soviet union and France, drew so horrendous a picture of the plight in which this country finds itself today that it is difficult to credit him with believing in his own story. He reckons remote possibilities to be high probabilities. He believes Hitler to be capable of achieving everything and American forces to be capable of nothing. Hitler will get the British navy and will use it to take South America. Our navy will be bottled up in the Pacific. We shall be able to prevent none of these things from happening, etc., etc. A man who talks that way cannot be said to be thinking of the welfare of his country; he is conjuring up dangers in order to persuade his countrymen to do something which their common sense tells them not to do.

Saturday's hearing came immediately after the decision of the New Deal majority to take in secret the testimony of the responsible officers of the army and navy.

The army's chief of staff, Gen. George Marshall; the navy's chief of operations, Admiral Harold Stark, and the acting chief of the army air corps, Maj. Gen. George Brett, had all consented to appear at a public session of the house committee on foreign affairs. As experts in the conduct of war and as men immediately responsible for American preparation, they were to be asked whether the enactment of No. 1776 would help or hinder their effort and how. It was expected that they would comment, also, on the opinions expressed by Col. Lindbergh, Gen. Hugh Johnson, Hanford MacNider, and others in opposition to the measure.

Congressman Fish says that the witnesses had made no previous objection to a public hearing.

The conclusion is inescapable that the New Deal was afraid to let the army and navy men air their views in public. The witnesses owe their present high positions to the administration, but they could not be relied upon to stultify themselves on that account. They are no doubt well disposed toward the administration for the support it has given to rearmament and may long since have forgiven the New Dealers' neglect of the national defenses, but even so, the witnesses could not be trusted to say what Mr. Roosevelt wanted them to say.

The incident suggests that the war shouters are not as confident about the enactment of No. 1776 as they profess to be. The cabinet members who testified for the bill contradicted each other on essential points. They insisted, for example, that the President must be granted the power to give away the navy, but he says he has no intention of doing anything of the sort. Mr. Hull took the same line, but Mr. Stimson said he could readily imagine a situation in which the President might find it expedient to give our navy to Britain, and now Mr. Bullitt has said nothing could be farther from the President's purposes. Nobody has explained why Mr. Roosevelt should be authorized to do what he says he doesn't want or intend to do; and nobody has explained why a man who did transfer 50 destroyers should regard it as unthinkable to transfer other ships later on, if the power to do so is granted to him.

The witnesses against the bill have made a deep impression. They have agreed that this country is in no danger of successful invasion. Some of them have shown that if the administration proposes to adhere to the announced policy of aid to Britain short of war the bill is not needed. Without it we can defend ourselves and aid Britain, but with it we run the gravest risk of becoming embroiled after we have stripped ourselves of our war gear.

Evidences that the bill is not popular are increasing. The Union League club's poll showed that in the east as well as the west a majority of nearly 90 per cent in an economic class which is supposed to favor the measure is against it. The Kansas legislature in special session has adopted a resolution denouncing the bill. President Hutchins reports that the overwhelming response to his radio talk the other night was favorable to his views and against the bill. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has declared its opposition. Every day thousands of letters are sent to congressmen and other tens of thousands of names are attached to petitions demanding the defeat of the bill. The Gallup poll showed that 88 per cent of the American people desired to stay out of war and the evidence is accumulating that the people regard the bill as the highroad to war.

It is because of these indications of the popular will that the New Dealers took no chances with a public hearing. They feared that the men in command of our military forces might record the judgment that the United States cannot be successfully attacked; might argue against dissipating our defensive apparatus; might even estimate what the cost in blood and money to us would be if we joined in the war. A very little testimony of this sort might be more than sufficient to turn the balance in congress.

SAFEGUARD THE PANAMA CANAL.

The key to our national defense is the Panama canal. We have an excellent fleet, but to be effective it has to be kept together. As the need to use it may arise in either ocean, nothing must be left undone to protect the short passage from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The canal has been appropriately called the Achilles heel of the American defense system. Every precaution must be taken to assure its continuous operation. With land batteries and patrol vessels we can guard it against possible attack from warships. Fighter planes and antiaircraft guns are no doubt prepared to protect it against bombers. Guards can be placed aboard the ships passing thru the canal to keep members of the crews from doing mischief while going thru the locks.

But it is still conceivable that time bombs may be planted in the holds of the merchant ships which can be exploded in the channel and make it necessary for our fleet to make the double trip around South America in moving to the other ocean. Every nook and cranny of every ship going thru the canal and every piece of freight cannot be examined to remove all danger to our basic defense equipment.

There is only one way to be sure that no time bomb can blow up the Panama canal and that is by closing it to all but naval vessels for the period of the emergency. Until the two-ocean navy is a reality we cannot afford to take any chance.

Reserving the use of the Panama canal to the navy will not prove a serious handicap to the movement of freight. Freight which is not needed in a hurry can still be sent around the Horn. And the railroads are prepared to handle any traffic that might be diverted to them.

MR. HATHAWAY GETS THE GATE.

Clarence Hathaway, who was until recently the No. 2 communist in this country, is no longer editor of the New York Daily Worker. He is in banishment and the explanation is that he did not meet his obligations. The reference is certainly not to his failure to satisfy the judgment obtained by Mrs. Walter Liggett for a cruel libel after the murder of her husband, the Minneapolis editor. The communist party approved of the libel and wouldn't fire one of its intellectuals because he was derelict in that connection. Nor is it probable that he is in disgrace for failing to pay his grocery bill, or the ink man, or his party dues.

It has been remarked that it is more comfortable to be a communist in the United States than anywhere else in the world. So Mr. Hathaway, even if in disgrace, is in luck. If he disappears, it isn't with the attendant suspicion that he is permanently removed from the light. All the efforts of Mr. Trotsky's friends, aided by a friendly Mexican government, failed to keep this founder of communist Russia alive, altho he was given a fortified home filled with and surrounded by armed men. The vengeance of "our great Stalin" finally broke thru all the defenses and killed the nonconformist of the left deviation.

No other political movement requires so much uniformity of opinion as the communist and no other gets so little of it. Except where secret police can dominate the smallest units of the population, the process of this inexorable party discipline is one of continuing disintegration. No other politicos take each other's variations with so little hospitality for another opinion. In the end each man will regard himself as the source of the true word.

Even Trotsky's small party fell apart shortly before his death, altho it had the advantage of the most distinguished leadership, in point of services and opinions, remaining to the Marxist creed anywhere. There are more brands of communists walking around under individual hats in this country than any one person knows anything about and so long as these varieties of the doctrine remain here and so long as "our great Stalin" is kept out, they will be safe, unless they are careless with their passports, and free to increase and multiply, just as the amoeba, by breaking away as independent cells.

Mr. Hathaway now seemingly submissive and contrite—for whatever reason—may rejoice that he is in a society he thoroly abhors and far away from the one which represents the noblest aspirations of man.

Editorial of the Day

SHALL CONGRESS ABDICATE?

[Milwaukee Journal.]

In making war effectively, which is what President Roosevelt proposes to do, it is necessary that a great deal of arbitrary power be entrusted to the executive. But it has never been proposed before that congress should meekly hand over all its power. Nor has any argument been made by the administration that this is now necessary.

Congress has not even voted, or been asked to vote, approval of the war the President proposes on Germany and on any of the states subjugated by Germany and acting under German direction. But now congress is asked for blanket approval of power to make war in aid of any nation Mr. Roosevelt may decide to aid, and, of course, against any nation he may decide to oppose. To finance that power appropriation of huge sums is contemplated.

Congress has not been asked for repeal of the neutrality law enacted at the President's request. But a little clause in the bill offered by Senator Barkley and Congressman McCormack would repeal no one can say how much of that act and of other laws. The little clause reads: "Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law, the President may . . ."

No such power as this ought to be voted in a hurry. If there is need for haste in some directions, congress can be asked for it, and will grant it. The public has not even had opportunity to express its approval of the war the President has advocated. Now it is asked to accept war, and with it the abdication of its newly elected congress. For if congress gives the powers asked, it will not have anything left that it cannot be forced by the very logic of circumstances to surrender.

AMONG THE BIRDS AND BEASTS.

Ground-hog day is approaching, and it's a safe bet that the chunky little marmot will see his shadow. Every one is seeing shadows these days, with good reason.

The three young fellows of Morrison, Ill., who captured an antlered deer with football tactics deserve the Order of St. Hubert for their prowess. Their feat was almost as hazardous as tackling a German tank with bare hands. A deer at bay fights with its hoofs, which are deadly cutting weapons. . . . Our guess is that these hardy lads were dealing with a fugitive domesticated deer; otherwise they would now be in a hospital.

* * *

That deer capturing exploit reminds us of the two youths who came into the Tribune Tower about 10 years ago with a live loon in their clutches. The bird, wingtipped in an accident of migration, had been picked up on the street. Its captors wanted to have their prize photographed and identified. The Tribune's official naturalist was not on duty, but we took one look, and said:

"It's a loon. Now find a doctor and get your hands bandaged."

The loon, with daggerlike thrusts of its powerful bill, had gored the lads badly, and was still whanging away whenever it saw a chance to reach white meat.

* * *

A friend of ours testifies that he once owned a parrot that enjoyed English literature. The bird would perch on his shoulder for hours while he read aloud to it. Whenever he would pause, Polly would say, "That's fine! That's fine!"

"THIS IS FOREVER ENGLAND."

[On an English landscape.]

"This is forever England": old, old trees
That shelter friendly cottages, and shade
Brown winding paths, hold thrushes' melodies
Within their arms, and, all their pride displayed,
Lean to be mirrored in a shining stream
Whose still blue water is an earth-bound sky
Where, like pale stars, the water lilies gleam—
Exquisite peace and loveliness that lie
In benediction on the ancient land.
And yet, in ages past, men fought upon
This quiet ground; these trees and houses stand
On soil made richer by old battles won. . . .
They did not grow by chance. A mighty race,
Proud, brave and gentle, wrought this flowering
Out of its living dreams, that in the place
Where men had died for freedom, Keats might sing
Of beauty; and a man with paints and brush
Might make immortal, by a miracle,
The trees, and water, and the hidden thrush,
And capture, on the canvas, England's spell.
This is forever England—heritage
Of all who call her Mother, near and far.
Not all the battle's wild, insensate rage
Can still her songs, or dim one shining star.

The Duke Discusses Lincoln Park.

Them there Greeks shood brag about driving tanks over mountains an ditches. Whadda ya spose wood happen to them if they tried to drive a car up and back every day from Foster Ave. to tha loop? As a public-spirited citizen I have devised a map which cuts off many hrs. time thereby gettin you to work in time to wash up and go home.

First ya make a left turn an get into tha outer inner outer drive, then you fork to tha right which gets you on tha inner outer. Dont ever turn left from here cause you'll find one-way sts. and that's one-way of stickin yer neck out cause tha signs dont say which way. Never think youre a smart cookie by juss following traffic, cause them heels ahead are lost souls same as you.

Above all dont drive over 25 cause right about this time of year there's a "Policemen's Ball" and 5 of them ducats puts a swell ½ Nelson on a sawbuck. Course you can say "Nix," and be introduced to tha department's innovation called "Curb Service." The Gendarme who stopped me yesterday claimed I was doin 26, an I tole him if he cood get this car up that far he cood have it. He takes one look at tha bus an says, "Tell yer grandmaw I wish her a Happy New Year," and in 5 seconds he looks like a Singer midget on a velocopede.

I was thinking of buying a compass providing I had assurance from Congress that they aint also gonna give Mah Fren a blank check on changing tha map into having all Southern states instead of some east, west, and north ones. Its finally awfully nice to hit tha downtown streets where ya start to get detours in bigger bunches than bananas, cause by that time your mind is in such a state that you woodn be surprised if ya kissed yer mother-in-law or told yer wife that she just aint spending enough money. ECSTASY IN BLUE.

O, there's the indigo blue of a mallard's wing
And the turquoise blue of lakes in Spring.
There's a pale blue, the frail blue of iris in May
And the bold ultramarine of the sea by day.
There's the wind-washed blue of the evening light,
There's a sapphire blue—the stars at night.
There is lapis-lazuli, royal Aztec's pride,
And the spruce-blue sheen of the mountainside.
Wedgwood, Gainsborough, T'ang vases of old,
Illumed Gothic books that of Heaven told—
All these I love, but the blue that I prize
Is the strangely beautiful blue of your eyes.

WHY THE BODY NEEDS CALCIUM.

WHILE we have long known that calcium is included among the body's vital components, a full explanation of its importance was not forthcoming until a little more than a generation ago. It was found that muscles would lose their power to contract should the circulation be depleted of this substance.

Today every physician understands that there is a close relationship between a correct balance of calcium containing foods and the normal functioning of the nervous system. Furthermore, should the heart fail to do its job satisfactorily; should it appear feeble and unable to pump sufficient blood, additional quantities of this mineral may offer real support in returning the structure to fair efficiency.

It seems to make little difference in what form lime is administered—just so it is absorbed. If digestion has become so deranged that but a meager ratio of the material is taken up by the blood stream, it may be necessary to introduce it into a vein. The alternating use of calcium gluconate and digitalis has restored many a flagging "pump" to reasonable competence.

How does the mineral help? In the first place, if the rate is too rapid, a proper dose may lower it to average within an hour. This in itself is a long step forward, as a fluttering organ is wearing itself out. Furthermore, the "piston stroke" is neither forceful nor effective. It is little short of spectacular to observe a drop from 140 or 150 beats to 80 or 90 per minute in a brief period of time.

Why is this essential? Because the strength of the contractions is greatly enhanced as the intervals between them are lengthened. In other words, when we slow the rhythm we are adding substantially to the ability of the heart to do work. Apparently, the influence of the drug is a dual one, acting upon the nervous machinery as well as the muscle itself.

Naturally, the question will be asked—are there any untoward effects following the employment of a solution of calcium? The answer is—not as long as it is given slowly and in fractional amounts. There is reason to be cautious, however, if digitalis has been prescribed recently. Several days—at least four or five—should elapse, with no other medicine, before resorting to lime injections.

A recent report of several cases by A. S. Rogen illustrates the value of this program. One of his subjects—a man of 46—suffered from a grossly enlarged heart. Breathing was difficult and the face and lips were a dusky blue. Rest in bed had been ordered but no benefit was noted. Glucose directly into a vein failed to bring the slightest change in his condition.

Because he had been on a deficiency diet due to poor digestion, calcium was suggested and small doses were given on alternate days. Improvement was prompt and steady. The contractions became more regular and more deliberate. Three weeks later the patient was discharged, able to carry on moderate physical activity.

In this series, 41 patients who did not respond to the usual method of combating cardiac failure are discussed, and the conclusion seems sound that when digitalis fails—as it will occasionally—the aid offered by calcium may be worth while. At any rate—even in the absence of heart or muscular weakness—we can make certain that we have enough. Milk and cottage cheese constitute excellent sources.

WHEAT FLOUR.

D. C. writes: What is the difference between whole wheat and graham flour?

REPLY.

Whole wheat, conforming to government specifications, uses the entire kernel. Bakers who prepare graham [a trade name] add more bran or coloring matter, such as caramel or molasses. This gives a darker shade. In addition, graham is finer than whole wheat, which frequently contains coarser particles.

ITCHING EARS.

A MOMENTOUS DECISION.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—We are now facing the greatest national crisis of our history. Bill No. 1776 now before congress is to give the President power to lead us into the war. It is the most important measure ever before congress, for it provides for a dictatorship for this country.

The proponents of the bill declaim that it does not provide for a dictatorship. The people generally seem to be divided into those who favor the bill and those who have really read its provisions.

We have condemned totalitarian power and the dictators of Europe, and praise and preach democracy.

Now to defeat dictatorship in Europe must we have a dictatorship here?

E. L. SHANER.

NOTE TO COL. LINDBERGH.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Jan. 24.—Come on, Col. Lindbergh, gather your senses again.

Remember back in '27 when you flew the Spirit of St. Louis across the Atlantic and remember the millions of people that cheered you for your great feat.

Now don't spoil all those wonderful memories by having those same millions give you the Bronx cheer as a great Nazi enthusiast. HARRY S. STEPHENS.

REPLY TO MR. HUTCHINS.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—The radio address of President Hutchins of the University of Chicago is the first of which I know which puts dissent from President Roosevelt's program of all out aid to England on high moral grounds. It was superb, but it was also an oversimplification of the problem.

Should he not also have told his audience of the desperate economic plight of Latin America which would undoubtedly force it to drop, without invasion, into the lap of a Hitler controled European and Asiatic market? Who does business with Hitler does it on Hitler's terms.

And what would American manufacturers and agriculturists do as they contemplated our continued postwar isolation from these same markets? THE TRIBUNE would lead the procession of those demanding a "realistic" foreign policy of friendship toward a Nazi world. One cannot be a friend of Hitler and still retain the civil liberties on which democracy rests. The accumulation of such pressure might easily prove powerful enough to destroy our none too strong democracy without invasion and without the firing of a single shot.

The choice which confronts us is not the simple one which President Hutchins suggests. THOMAS E. BENNER.

UNAFRAID.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—Thank God that there are at least a few unafraid Americans like Col. Lindbergh and President Hutchins who dare to give utterance to what millions think but are afraid to say for fear of having their Americanism impeached. A LOYAL AMERICAN.

THE DEBTS.

RIVERSIDE, Ont., Jan. 13.—I notice those alleged war debts keep popping up in THE TRIBUNE every so often. I am referring especially to your editorial in yesterday's edition.

What you isolationists never seem to get into your noodles is that the United States could have had payment at any time for the loans made to Great Britain during the first world war. What the British people borrowed from you was goods, not gold. Nearly every dollar given in credit to the British people was spent in the United States for American food and munitions. The British people have always stood ready to pay that debt with goods. The Americans have, however, refused to accept goods, declaring that you wanted gold, tho you have no better use for gold than to dig a hole in the mountains of Kentucky and bury it.

The fact is that business men of the United States have never been willing to accept payment either in goods or gold for the full amount of the credits granted Britain during the last war. You would not accept goods, since to do so would injure your own manufacturers. You did not want Britain to bankrupt herself by transferring all her gold to the United States, for if she had you would have lost a good customer.

Well informed Americans know that the British government has laid down 4 billion dollars in cash on the line for foodstuffs and munitions before asking for credits to the extent of another 4 billions, mostly for the benefit of Uncle Sam's European allies. Manufacturers made millions, and your workers enjoyed unparalleled prosperity as a result of the fancy profits charged John Bull in his hour of necessity. When the war was over Britain forgave her allies in Europe the debts they could not pay, but the United States insisted on full payment of obligations undertaken on their behalf. Britain whacked up over 2 billion dollars before suspending payments. Because of the high rate of interest charged, she still owed 9 billions on a 4 billion dollar debt. The interest amounted to one and a half times the principal borrowed.

Sometimes we Britishers wonder if Britain really owed you Americans anything. We sacrificed hundreds of thousands of lives in defense of human freedom before you entered the war, and during the year you were getting ready to fight offered our bleeding bodies as a rampart to protect the American people. Today history is repeating itself. But what, may I ask, is the dollar value of a British life?

However, we Canadians do not allow ourselves to become embittered by isolationist claptrap. As the last elections have amply proven, the vast majority of your people are thoroly aware of the fact that we are fighting for your liberties as well as our own. We are more than grateful for your present assistance and are certain it won't be long before you toss overboard that irritating phrase which sticks so in our throats—"all aid short of war." ALFRED J. SMITH.

CONTRAST.

Barrington, Ill., Jan. 23.—We the people are asked to give dimes to help cripples while congress debates whether to spend our billions to build machines of human destruction. Are we to pity the helpless invalid and raise our own stalwart sons to be ruthlessly maimed and killed? The stronger and more intelligent our sons grow the more in demand are they as soldiers. I pity the mothers of straight young men whose bodies have been a glory and whose minds have been trained for usefulness. These the nation does not count as worth a dime—only as backers of death dealing machines.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Will you please tell me if any assistant probate judge in the Probate court can issue a warrant for arrest on a matter pertaining to an estate in the Probate court?

3. Is there any special time set to obtain warrants in this court? J.

1. It seems probable that the matter will be referred to Judge O'Connell.

2. Ordinarily this would be advisable. You are in a better position than we are to say whether your experience and resourcefulness are exceptional.

3. No. We could advise to better advantage if you had stated your facts.

WHERE TRACTION FUND GOES: FEES OF EXPERTS HIGH

$1,295,580 Appropriated for Them in 1941.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

Approximately 1,000 engineers, other experts and their assistants on the subway and traction unification projects will receive compensation totaling $1,295,580 from the city's traction fund in 1941. These technicians are not included in the 2,500 employés including many other engineers, who handle the actual construction of the subway under contractors.

This compensation figure, giving one indication of how the one time 67 million dollar traction fund is being spent, was disclosed last night by Ald. James R. Quinn [50th], chairman of the local transportation committee of the city council. He made public an analysis of fund expenditures which he will present to the council today.

Appropriate 23 Millions.

The council two weeks ago appropriated $23,400,000 from the traction fund for subway construction and other items in 1941, altho it had received no itemized statements of proposed costs or number of employés, such as the council requires in making other city appropriations.

The lump sum allotments were approved over persistent objections from Ald. Paul H. Douglas [5th] and Ald. John S. Boyle [16th], who demanded that proposed costs be itemized. Ald. Douglas charged that too much money is being appropriated from the traction fund to pay experts hired in connection with the subway digging and the drafting of traction plans.

The traction fund since 1911 has financed the city's various transportation plans, and is contributing the city's 34 million dollar share of the 57 million dollar subway [a federal grant supplies the balance].

Until this year, however, the aldermen have approved the lump sum allotments without asking where the money was going.

Thirteen Million for Contingencies.

Ald. Quinn explained that of the total traction fund allotment of $23,400,000 for 1941, $13,214,320 is to be set aside for contingencies of various kinds and will be spent, if at all, only under special orders from the city council.

This leaves $10,185,680 actually to be spent. Of this sum, $8,890,100 is allocated for actual subway construction and for the subway department and traction engineers' offices.

The remainder is the $1,295,580 that is to go directly from the traction fund for salaries and experts' fees.

An analysis of these proposed payments, with the number of employés, where available on the records, is shown below:

	Am't.	No. employés.
SUBWAY.
Engineering dept.	*$427,600	†610
Consultants	*8,300	....

Property surveys [personal services]	50,000	....

Bureau of traction [personal services]	11,100	....
Comm. on loc. trans. [salaries]	248,680	105
Comm. on loc. trans. [special counsel]	15,000	....
Legal experts and ass'ts paid from above sums [subway and traction]	.....	7
	$397,380	122
GRAND TOTAL	$1,295,580	743

*Amounts are only 55 per cent of payments to employés. Remainder paid by federal government.

†Possible maximum. Present roll is 472.

The tabulation above includes a total of $453,900 for hiring experts, consultants, attorneys, and assistants of undetermined number. It is estimated that these employés, many of whom will be hired for short periods on a per day basis, will push to 1,000 persons the total number drawing salaries from the traction fund in 1941.

Sexton Tops List at $22,500.

The yearly salaries to be paid from the traction fund range from $1,200 to $22,500. William H. Sexton, special traction counsel, tops the list. Other salaries include: Philip Harrington, commissioner of subways and superhighways, $20,000; Maj. R. F. Kelker Jr., engineer for the committee on local transportation, $18,000; Ralph H. Burke, chief subway engineer, $15,000, and Charles De Leuw, consulting subway engineer, $12,500.

Ald. Quinn and Maj. Kelker announced yesterday that 38 of the 105 employés on the transportation committee's staff will be discharged at the end of six months. Maj. Kelker said that the 38 have been making special surveys of bus extensions planned under the unified traction ordinance and of traffic reroutings necessitated by subway construction. This work will be finished by midyear, he added. The employés, classified as inspectors, receive from $165 to $215 per month.

Maj. Kelker said that the additional 67 inspectors, supervisors, clerks, engineers and attorneys are needed for traffic surveys. This staff checks complaints on transportation service, and makes surveys that result in recommendations to the transit lines for changes in service, he said.

Subway Staff to Taper Off.

Burke said that all of the present staff of 472 in the subway engineering department are needed for drawing specifications, designing, contract and clerical work, soil inspection, checking actual construction, and other work. About half the employés are out on construction jobs, he said.

The number probably will not reach the possible maximum of 610, and will taper off to almost nothing before the end of 1941, when the subway will be nearly finished, he added.

Burke explained that engineering costs on the subway project are running 6 per cent of the total cost, which, he added, is considered reasonable for such work. The following table analyzes the total subway cost, to be paid jointly by the city and the federal government, and lists the traction fund's share for 1941:

	Total est. subway cost.	Pct. of total.	Trac'n fund app'n, '41.
Preliminary expense	$ 137,000	0.5	$ 46,350
Right of way	2,800,000	0.4	593,000
Construction	50,639,000	86.5	8,018,650
Engineering	3,424,000	6.0	556,000
Administration	400,000	0.6	56,000
TOTAL	$57,400,000	100.0	$9,270,000

The cost of the subway originally was estimated at 40 million dollars when work started in November, 1938. Since then the estimates have been raised 6 millions. An extension to cost $6,000,000, and station equipment and connections with "L" structures to cost $5,400,000 also have been added to the plans, raising the cost to the present figure.

The traction fund was built up by payments to the city from the street car companies for the use of streets from 1907 to 1931. In 1938 the fund had a face value of 67 millions. After the city's share of the subway cost is paid for, it is estimated the fund will contain about 32 millions, of which nearly 20 millions is frozen in old tax warrants. The warrants are not salable and are of highly uncertain value.

STATE'S DRAFT QUOTA IS SET FOR 5,213 IN MONTH; 2,445 IN CITY

Paul G. Armstrong, state director of selective service, announced yesterday that Illinois would furnish 5,213 men for army induction during February. Fifty-five per cent, or approximately 2,857, will be taken from Cook county, 2,445 of them from Chicago. The state quota includes 860 Negroes.

Before the February quota becomes effective local draft boards must bend their efforts toward calling and inducting the remainder of the January quota. Only 2,700 of the 4,739 state quota for January have been inducted into the service.

During February all volunteers who so far have not been called will be taken into the army, Armstrong said. Volunteers in excess of an individual board's quota will be summoned and credited to the quota of another board.

GREEN TO OPEN OFFICE FOR AID OF JOB SEEKERS

It Will Permit Him to Take Up State Duties.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 26.—After spending five consecutive days behind his statehouse desk facing an almost unending line of jobseekers, Governor Green was freed today by the Sabbath from this repetitive pattern, but continued to work at the mansion in conference with his highway police advisory committee.

This group, which is headed by Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond of Chicago, lunched with the governor and spent most of the rest of the day with him, but no announcement was made as to whether it had established the policy upon which selection of the 350 man force will be based.

Wants Merit System.

Green has announced that he is convinced some sort of merit test should decide police selection and tenure of office, as well as promotion.

It is not likely that a progress report from the committee will be released until later in the week.

Meanwhile Green's personal staff hopes to divert a major portion of the jobseekers from the governor's office thru establishment of an employment office in a Springfield building several blocks from the capitol. John T. Dempsey of Chicago, chairman of the Cook county Republican central committee and of the governor's employment group, will oe in charge. A truckload of furniture for the office has arrived from Chicago, Once the office is in operation, the governor will be able to give much more time to state business.

100 Callers a Day.

In the past five days since Green's return from a week-end in Chicago, the governor's office has been swamped by about 100 callers a day, all of them asking an audience with the governor. John William Chapman, the appointment secretary, generally is able to send about ten of them to other administrative offices, but the remaining 90 stay until they are ushered to a chair in front of Green's desk. One or two want to talk legislation, the rest jobs.

AUDITOR LUEDER LETS 181 CHIEFS PICK JOBHOLDERS

State Auditor Arthur C. Lueder believes he has hit upon a plan of patronage distribution which will hold political headaches to a minimum, he said yesterday. Letters assigning one job to each have been sent to the 101 downstate Republican county chairmen and to the 80 Chicago ward and country township committeemen in Cook county.

"Aside from the bank receivership division in which I expect to make few changes, there are about 250 employés of the state auditor," Lueder said. "I'm not going to disturb any one recognized as an expert so I think there will be about 200 refillable jobs.

"The 181 applications forthcoming from persons approved by local G. O. P. organizations are subject to rejection by me, of course."

Off for Screen Test

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Michael Cipriani, 19 years old, a former W-G-N studio usher, left for New York yesterday on what he hopes is the golden road to film fame.

A few months ago Clarence M. Shapiro, a midwest talent scout for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, saw a picture of Cipriani in a commercial photographer's studio. Cipriani's family, who live at 2840 Roosevelt road, were on relief, and from this point on the sequence of events could be paralleled only in a Horatio Alger novel.

He was given an audition, and passed it successfully. He took sound tests, which were successful. He was given a guardian. He was given a contract. The final step, in New York this week, will be final screen tests.

ACCEPTS RIDE; BEATEN AND ROBBED.

Edward Plamp, 45 years old, 4716 North Talman avenue, accepted the offer of two young men to drive him to an elevated station yesterday. Instead they drove him to an alley near Sedgwick and Menominee streets, beat him and took $2. Plamp was taken to Alexian Brothers hospital.

U. S. PROSECUTOR ENTERS INDIANA ALIEN VOTE PROBE

Promises Speedy Action Against Poll Violators.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

James R. Fleming, United States attorney of the northern Indiana district, yesterday entered the investigation of alien voting in Lake county and warned that such voting is a federal offense.

James R. Fleming.

The investigation will be started officially today with organization of a committee of 14 members of the Indiana senate and house whose primary duty is to decide who was the rightful winner of the Nov. 5 race for governor—Henry F. Schricker, Democrat starting his third week in the office, or Glen R. Hillis, Kokomo Republican. The contest involves a margin of only 3,963 votes and is the first such contest in the history of Indiana.

Rule May Upset Office.

If the committee should rule that alien votes invalidate the returns from six Lake county precincts in which the Democratic lead was the greatest, Hillis would become the winner.

"Alien voters violated a federal statute by falsely representing themselves as citizens," Fleming said. "If there has been a federal violation, it will be handled as speedily and capably as possible. No attention will be paid to political lines."

Fleming, who had just returned from Washington, D. C., to his Fort Wayne home, said he would await more detailed evidence than has been made public. Federal Judge Thomas Slick, who presides over citizenship proceedings in Lake county, and Fred D. Schlotfeldt, immigration bureau director for the area, said they are watching progress of the inquiry.

Citizenship Bar Possible.

Illegal voting may bar applicants from obtaining final citizenship papers. Approximately 1,800 aliens became citizens in Judge Slick's court last year.

Former Judge Virgil E. Whitaker of Hammond, who filed the governership contest petition, charges that 350 of 1,568 persons naturalized since Nov. 5 voted in that election. It was reported that his investigation, not yet completed, indicates 2,600 other aliens also voted.

Whitaker said he would ask prosecution of alien voters under either federal or state law. He is deferring this request until after the election contest because only 40 days of the 61 day legislative session remain to thresh out the Schricker-Hillis matter.

17,793 Register in Area.

The new alien registration law caused 17,793 persons to sign up at postoffices in Lake county. By cities the count was: Gary, 8,373; East Chicago, 7,205; Hammond, 2,196, and Whiting, 1,511. Others were scattered thruout the county.

These records, made secret by a ruling of the department of labor, were not available to Whitaker for his investigation. He used federal court records of persons who have applied for citizenship since 1932 and also used registration and voting records. These records are expected to be subpenaed by the legislative committee, which will use Whitaker's findings as a guide to determining illegal votes.

The committee has authority to formulate its own rules, in the absence of precedent, and Republicans have majorities in both houses of the Indiana legislature.

Why People Drop Life Insurance Policies

'HINDSIGHT AND FORESIGHT'
a weekly column by
Holgar J. Johnson
President Institute of Life Insurance

A LETTER from the head of a family tells of his experience in the last depression. He relates how, because of financial pressure, he dropped one of his policies in order to raise cash to pay off his debts and start life anew.

JOHNSON

Had he consulted his agent, he might possibly have been able to accomplish the same purpose without even a temporary loss of protection—his letter didn't give all the facts. Fortunately, he remained insurable and his comeback was rapid; he was so impressed with this unexpected usefulness of life insurance as he saw it operate in a crisis that the family now has four policies instead of the original two.

We all regret that any policy should ever be terminated. Neither the insurance company or anyone else likes to see people drop their insurance.

The chief underlying cause of most lapses and surrenders of policies is economic pressure, as indicated by the way they rise and fall with unemployment, moving opposite to the curve of business activity. Another cause is the great difficulty many of us have in carrying out our good intentions—whether they relate to family protection, systematic saving or even to planned spending.

Fortunately these terminated policies have served a purpose. On some, a cash surrender is paid, as in the case above. In other cases, the full amount of protection is continued for a term of years, or a reduced amount of insurance is provided without further payment of premiums.

As for the remaining cases, where the termination took place before such benefits were earned, the family was protected while the insurance was in force—and in this connection it is significant that last year over 66,000 death claims were paid on insurance in force less than a year.

Thus, to get a clear and true picture of life insurance in action, we must always bear in mind the manifold and flexible benefits which the modern policy makes available to its owner.

This regular Monday column is provided by the Institute of Life Insurance to permit its President to speak to America's policy owners. Address inquiries to the Institute at 60 East 42nd St., New York City.

Of course, you wouldn't mislay a bass drum, or a bull fiddle, or a fleet of trucks. But people do. The Lost and Found ads prove it every day.

These little confessions of human weakness, and other ads signed anonymously "Box Number so-and-so," bear eloquent testimony to the thorough reading The New York Times gets. For replies to "Box Number" ads run to forty or fifty thousand a week — over 2,500,000 a year!

Whether people find something, or want to find out something, they naturally turn to The New York Times. This is one reason why advertising in The Times, whether "Box Number" or signed with your name, brings such plentiful and profitable response.

over 1,000,000 average net paid daily circulation during 1940

—the highest average for any year on record

During 1940 the daily net paid circulation of the Tribune averaged over 1,000,000 copies—the highest average for any year ever attained by any Chicago daily newspaper.

The reason for this achievement is that the Tribune keeps faith with readers. People know that when important events take place the Tribune prints the facts. They know that when news is hard to get, the Tribune gets it. They know that when it is expensive, the Tribune spares no expense. They know that the Tribune does not print fakes, that it does not open its columns to propaganda and that it has no tieups with political, social or financial interests which compromise its freedom to report the truth.

The Tribune is over 93 years old. It has been in business long enough to know that the business of the newspaper is facts. Thruout its long life it has given first attention to news—accurate reports gathered and written by the most competent reporters. It has never been bought or intimidated. It will not trick or fail its readers. It will continue to print the news when it happens and as it happens.

Voice of Marian Anderson Gains New Excellence

BY CECIL SMITH.

The Auditorium theater, with its 3,500 seats, was not large enough to accommodate all those who willingly bucked the snowstorm to hear Marian Anderson's first recital of the season. Even tho the concert was a nonsubscription event, the orchestra pit was filled to the last inch with extra chairs.

The great Negro contralto has never been in finer vocal form. Last year there seemed to be things to worry about in her singing, especially in the occasional instability and lack of focus of her middle register. But it is evident that no artist before the public works more seriously or more consistently than Miss Anderson, for she has brought her voice into more perfect shape than ever before.

All the unspeakable beauty of tone is still there, yet she has now brought her tone production under the most refined and discriminating control. Her upper pianissimos are now a complete success, which they never were before. And the noticeable break between her deep chest voice and her middle register has been ironed out, so that her scale is wonderfully even from bottom to top. Her high tones, when sung full voice, have lost the unpleasant cutting edge they had during the transitional period when she was trying to develop a more concentrated top voice. In short, she has now mastered her vocal instrument almost completely.

Her program followed the general outline she has employed in past seasons—a pre-classical group [Handel and Bach]; German lieder [seven of the songs from Schumann's "Dichterliebe" cycle]; an operatic aria ["Pleurez, pleurez, mes yeux," from Massenet's "Le Cid"]; a group of less traditional songs [this time she chose Latin American songs by Villa-Lobos, Tavares and Varona]; and a number of Negro spirituals at the close of the recital.

The pre-classical group ended with a profoundly devotional interpretation of the closing recitative and chorale from Bach's solo cantata, "Ich will den Kreuzstab gerne tragen." Altho the cantata was composed for the bass voice, Miss Anderson's darkly mystical lower range was more than equal to the expressive demands of the music.

The Schumann love lyrics were well sung, if in a mood of rather too great detachment and impersonality. In the Massenet aria, however, she lost much of the aloofness which had characterized all the first part of the program. With a marvelous outpouring of effortless tone, she gave a truly tremendous performance of one of the most affecting arias of its period.

The note of lightness and gayety which came into her singing of the Latin American songs was most welcome. Now that she is so sure of herself vocally, she can well afford to work in the direction of a more carefree and spontaneous approach to her devoted audience.

The familiar white-haired figure of Kosti Vehanen was no longer at the piano, for Franz Rupp, a competent accompanist recently arrived from middle Europe, has replaced the former Finnish collaborator. Mr. Rupp played expertly and musically, altho the desire for an orchestral sonority from the piano sometimes led him into tonal indiscretions.

Horowitz Proves His Genius Anew Before Huge Audience

BY EDWARD BARRY.

His bad finger as good as or better than new and his face wreathed in contented smiles, Vladimir Horowitz returned to the Chicago concert platform yesterday after nearly a year's absence and gave a packed Orchestra hall an amazing demonstration of what it means to be born with a genius for a particular instrument.

For it is as if Horowitz and the piano were made for each other. His musical thought—intense, broad, and far ranging, and at the same time rich in intimate detail and warmly human—finds in the piano the one perfect medium of expression. And, conversely, it is hardly too far-fetched to claim that the instrument itself responds to this born pianist as if it recognized in him the most plausible modern claimant of the much tossed about mantle of Liszt and Rubinstein. At any rate, it does things for him which it churlishly refuses to do for all but two or three other pianists.

Take, for example, yesterday's performance of those sublime phrases in major which immediately succeed the minor opening of the Chopin Funeral March. If an ordinary man were to strike the piano as hard as Horowitz did here the result would be a sickening thump. But for him the instrument piled up its sonorities with a majestic ease, and instead of calling attention to the fact that its normal limit of loudness had long since been reached and passed it actually gave each new phrase a more thunderous splendor than the one which had preceded it.

And in the Schumann Arabesque the piano forgot to be itself—that is, a mechanism for producing sound by the impact of hammers on steel—and became something about a third as heavy as air. The effect in the scherzo of Chopin's B-Flat Minor Sonata was similar. The fainting little melody of the trio seemed to sing itself without benefit of anything so gross as metal or wood.

And in the Liszt "Funerailles," where such cumulative passion might in the ordinary course of events have resulted in incoherence or even chaos, the piano accommodatingly provided not only an organlike power but an unexpected variety of strong and somber colorings. The piece's emotional impact was terrific, but it never became forced or declamatory.

Besides the works already mentioned, Mr. Horowitz' program held Beethoven's Thirty-two Variations in C Minor, six capricious little pieces by the living Russian composer, Valerii Jelobinsky, and Liszt's "Au Bord d'une Source," "Feux Follets," and E Major Etude [after Paganini]. The applause was like gunfire, and Mr. Horowitz added as encores first a Chopin Mazurka, then the same composer's "Black Key" Etude and C-Sharp Minor Waltz, and finally his own "Carmen" Variations.

True to his promise to the Musicians Club of Women, Frederick Stock presented their contest winner, Bertha Ostrar, in Orchestra hall Saturday night as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra in the Shostakovich piano concerto. Miss Ostrar played with humor, rhythmic power, technical adroitness and—in the one or two places where the music called for such a quality—with a lyrical beauty of tone and phrase.

Good Morning!

Wa-ait a minute! Who's the male star of this show, anyway? Fred Astaire or Artie Shaw? I'm a wee scrappie confused.

Certainly you see just about as much of one as you do of the other, and don't think Artie can only lead a band. He can act, too. Dance also? I wouldn't know about that but as far as I'm concerned, he doesn't need to.

And as for Paulette Goddard stepping into Ginger Rogers' terpsichorean shoes—she doesn't. After appearing with Mr. Astaire in one simple number, she is relegated to a straight acting rôle—in which she acquits herself very well, it may be said.

"Second Chorus" is a light and carefree opus built about the adventures of a couple of perennial seniors in a small league college. [Mr. Astaire and Mr. Burgess Meredith.] They don't want to graduate, because to do so would break up the college band, of which Fred is the leader, and in which both play trumpet.

The pretty face of a bill collector's secretary leads them into paths they had not thought to wander. . . . She becomes their manager, does so well for them that Artie Shaw scoops her up to be useful to him in like capacity and takes her to New York. . . . Here she remembers her old friends and tries to help them out. . . . Hand time the girl has, for the two jealous gazaboes mess up every chance she hands them.

Enters Charles Butterworth as a serio-comic character who loves music but ain't got rhythm. A simple soul with lots of money. . . . Ellen pursues him for reasons of her own, Artie Shaw's, Danny O'Neil's, and Frank Taylor's. . . . Time brings complications for everybody.

The action proceeds to the tune of considerable catchy music, some laughs, and a lot of hokum.

Men in the cast are all excellent. Grand to see Mr. Butterworth again in a rôle that suits him! Miss Goddard has a light touch and a pleasing personality. I understand she insists on having says about her wardrobe—and that's a mistake. She wears some goshawful getups and hair-dos.

"Second Chorus" isn't a world beater, but its an efficient blues chaser.

See you tomorrow.

Enjoys Lengthy Vacation

Miss Betty Bennett is having a prolonged recess from her classes at the Shipley school in Bryn Mawr, Pa., for she will go to Passavant hospital this week for an appendectomy. This picture of the James E. Bennetts' daughter was taken while she was lunching at the Pump room recently. A senior at Shipley, she plans to remain in Chicago next winter to study art.

Winter Carnivals to Be Given Next Week-End by Two Clubs

BY JUDITH CASS.

SONJA HENIE had better look to her figure eights—what with two winter carnivals coming up next week-end, one at the Exmoor club on Friday and one at the Winter club on Saturday. The Exmoor carnival challenges any winter spree Dartmouth college ever promoted, for the club has facilities for hockey, curbing, skating, tobogganing, and skiing, and all will be put into use—Jack Frost permitting, of course. The skating and hockey rinks are being strung with colored lights and decked with Christmas trees and a loud speaker system will chime forth wintry songs from the clubhouse.

Ice polo has never been attempted by any of the Onwentsia or 124th Field Artillery teams, but the Exmoor youngsters are including it on their Friday program. Where the horses come in won't be revealed until the referee blows the whistle for the first chukker.

Exmoor Ballerinas Rehearse Pirouettes.

Exmoor's skating instructor, Mrs. Harris Lyons, has her prize dancers and ballerinas polishing up their pirouettes for a "Ten Step" number. Besides Mrs. Lyons, Alfred T. Sihler, Mrs. Thomas B. Singleton, Louis J. Stirling, Charles R. Perrigo, Miss Jean Perrigo, William W. White, Edward C. George, Mrs. John Newey, and Mrs. E. E. Stroul will take part.

Miss Jean Perrigo will do a solo waltz number and Robert Gray and Louis J. Stirling will clown thru "Learn to Skate" lessons.

Court W. Toel will be master of ceremonies. Francis M. Knight, Jerome T. Bowes, Kenneth G. Ives, Dean McCormick, Samuel H. Bingham, George Hartman, Richard A. Kebbon, and Arthur Claghorn also will take part.

Characters straight from the pages of "Hans Brinker, or the Silver Skates" will appear on both the Exmoor and Winter club rinks, for both clubs are giving prizes for the best children's costumes and both are holding grand marches before the races.

Exmoor to Have Supper in Midst of Carnival.

Connie Dunham, Alice Keith Carpenter, Peggy Whipple, Jean Fleming, and Louise Pope will compete in the Winter club figure skating contests.

A buffet supper will be served in the clubhouse in the midst of the Exmoor carnival, but since the Winter club party is primarily for the youngsters, they will be given cocoa and cookies and sent home for supper.

Charles F. Clarke is the new president of the Winter club, Edison Dick is vice president, Frank Read is treasurer, and W. Irving Osborne Jr. is secretary.

The annual meeting of the women's board of St. Luke's hospital will be held this morning. After the meeting Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland will entertain at luncheon in the nurses' dining room for Mrs. John W. Gary, who has headed the board for 15 years.

Barnard-Page Wedding Scheduled for Feb. 8.

Miss Patricia Wardwell Barnard and Philip Channer Page have chosen Feb. 8 for their wedding date. The ceremony will take place in the Episcopal church in Hinsdale and after a motor trip thru the south, Mr. Page and his bride will live on Chicago's south side. Miss Barnard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Stanton Barnard of White Fence farm, Lemont, and Mr. Page is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Richard John Lee of Hinsdale.

Easter Saturday, April 12, has been chosen by two brides-to-be, Miss Jeannine Young and Miss Barbara Guylee, as their wedding date. Miss Young will become the bride of Edson Benton Cooke, son of Mrs. E. B. Cooke of Delaware place, in a small ceremony. Miss Young is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Austin Young of

Looking at Hollywood
By John Chapman

Diary of a Movie Correspondent.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 26.—Sunday—Last night was an entertaining one at Furnace Creek in Death Valley, what with dinner with Mr. and Mrs. James Cagney and a session with Cagney and Bill Frawley afterward. I only half believed all those stories about Jim doing roadwork, but I find they're true. He has to watch his weight as carefully as a woman star, for the Cagneys in general are sizable. Yesterday morning he ran two miles on the desert, frinstance. . . . Being on location may be a picnic for visitors, but it isn't for actors and crew. Everybody's weather conscious and glares hatefully at every cloud. Already clouds have lengthened a week's shooting into 10 days.

Monday—In the evening to the Warner studio to see "High Sierra" made in the locale thru which we drove yesterday, and it's fun to recognize landmarks. I observe that we seem to have traveled as fast as Humphrey Bogart did trying to get away from the cops. . . . Another observation, and meant as a compliment: Jules Brulatour seems to sell ordinary cellulose to most movie companies, but for the Warners puts out pure wood pulp. This studio seems to have a corner on bang bang adventure stuff, and is at its best when making it.

Tuesday—To R. K. O. to spend the morning with Jean Arthur on the set of "The Devil and Miss Jones." Notoriously reporter-shy, Miss Arthur has a reputation as a problem girl; but I find her honest and intelligent and completely charming. Between takes she puts on a fur coat over her bathing suit, curls on the sofa of her auto trailer dressing room, and talks of her job. Thinking the customers would welcome a change, she'd like to do something besides comedy or outdoor girl stuff next. "Miss Susie Slagle" is a possibility—but first she's got to go back to Columbia and make whatever they order up for her.

Wednesday—The usual seat of the pants on the seat of the chair day, and in the evening to a projection room showing of the Jimmy Stewart-Hedy Lamarr, "Come, Live With Me." It doesn't seem up to the Metro standard except in physical excellence, but everybody thinks it will make a lot of money and how am I going to get around that?

Thursday—Title of "Come, Live with Me" derives from a Christopher Marlowe poem. An ecstatic local reviewer writes that it's from an old poem by Christopher Morley. Hiya, Kit Foyle! . . . To the Warner lot to see Hartzell Spence, who's on leave from the New York office to get a start on the movie of his book, "One Foot in Heaven." Raymond Massey is his choice to play the parson—but I hear Massey is going to do some live acting on Broadway opposite Katharine Cornell. . . . Around the lot for a call on Merle Oberon, who's in "Affectionately Yours," and on Louis Hayward, who is testing for a rôle opposite his wife, Ida Lupino, in a new pic. She's making the test with him. Miss Oberon is different from most stars in two ways: Instead of just resting between takes, she takes a walk outdoors around the big stage; and every afternoon she serves tea to everybody.

Friday—To Twentieth Century-Fox where they tell me that Brooklyn's young Stash Clements is a hit in "Tall, Dark, and Handsome," and of another Brooklyn lad who came all the way to Hollywood just for an official call on Milton Berle. On the lad's sweater was lettered, "President, Milton Berle Fan club." Egad, wattanonner! . . . For an hour's talk with Francis L. Harley, head of Fox's London studio, who tells of wartime movie-making—and of this, more tomorrow. . . . In the evening to catch "Night Train," a thrilling wartime London movie. Those Britons can work wonders with simple materials. "Night Train" is infinitely more effective anti-Nazi propaganda than any of Hollywood's problem stuff, just because it tries only to be a good show. At the theater where I saw it the other half of the bill was "Escape," and the point I just made was right there on the screen.

Saturday—A morning of work, and then to Santa Anita.

Teacher and Pupils from England Will Keep School Going

Stow, Mass., Jan. 26 (AP).—An historic homestead in this rural town was made ready tonight for six English children—first group to arrive in the "transplanting" of an entire school from Kent, England.

With their head mistress, the young pupils will arrive here tomorrow and continue their studies at the new home of the F. Matthias Alexander Trust Fund school of Kent.

The American Unitarian association has placed at the disposal of the school the old Whitney homestead, consisting of 129 acres of farm, pasture, and woodland, with two houses—one 200 years old.

COMES THE POMPADOUR SKIMMER
riding in on the crest of your up-flung coiffure
Enchanting paradox . . . this new silhouette seems to skim the crest of your curls . . . actually fits comfortably over the crown. The curved-to-your-head bands—pretty development of the turban trend—fasten under or over your back hair, leaving your lovely nape curls in view!
Turn to this John Frederics concoction of burnt-sugar straw and ribbons—"catty green" and "mean red"—important forerunner of the new silhouette. Our deliberate choice from the American Primitive collection of these talented designers . . . fashions which exploit the womanly charm of an earlier era . . . look forward to a brilliant Spring future!

Who Is This Girl?

By Helen Topping Miller

[Copyright 1941: By Helen Topping Miller.]

SYNOPSIS.

Dining at the apartment of his employer, Harp Greenlee, a sheepman, who has grown soft with city ways; Dan McCullough, manager of the ranch, San Mateo, meets Storm whom Harp introduces as his niece, but Mac has heard him introduce so many women as his niece that he wonders just who Storm is. Beatrice Abney, also a guest at Harp's, asks Mac about her ex-husband, an artist, who is drinking himself to death near San Mateo. Mac tells Harp and Steele Dunlap, Harp's lawyer, that the ranch needs money to fight Humphrey Dane, who is trying to shut off the ranch water, and is suspected of stealing their sheep. The next day Mac meets Storm again and finds himself falling in love with her. He takes her home determined to have it out with Harp about just who Storm is. They find Harp dead. Storm tells Mac that she herself doesn't know who she is as Harp placed her in a convent when she was a small child, and only recently got her out and promised to tell her her real name, but never did. Gertrude, one of Harp's ex-girls, shows up and insists on telling Storm who she is, hinting that Storm is the same kind of woman.

INHERITANCE.

INSTALMENT XIII.

The telephone rang as McCullough was dropping off to sleep. Beatrice Abney's voice said, "I'm taking care of her, Mr. McCullough. She's quite calm now and I think she'll sleep."

"Thank you, Mrs. Abney." Mac breathed in relief. "I was sure she would be all right with you."

He slept then, deeply and exhaustedly, and did not wake till day was white and glaring at the windows.

At 9 o'clock Steele Dunlap called. He had returned to New York by plane. The funeral, he announced, would be held at 3 o'clock.

"There's no point in waiting, of course," his clipped voice dismissed any protest before it was spoken.

"No," Mac agreed, "no point in waiting."

Dan McCullough would have wished to bury Harp Greenlee at San Mateo.

There, where Harp had carved out a little empire from the hostile, barren hills, where his windmills turned, pumping the life giving silver from a hidden river, that lay under the earth, where his cattle drowsed in the lazy shade of the mesquite groves, and the winds wandered, free and homeless and defiant, Harp belonged.

Under a sky so wide and high that its great dome ennobled the creatures that moved beneath it, under a sun so challenging that men breathed its light till it became part of their blood and their bodies, making them valiant and afraid of nothing, and there was no loneliness because there were no shadows, Mac would have chosen a place for Harp.

A strong cairn on the slope of a vagabond butte, with cactus to open its orchid glory of mauve and scarlet in spring and chipmunks chittering like gold sparks of youth leaking from the veins of a land that refused to grow old, with cedars to hold the dark green of immortality and shed pungent fragrance on the arid air—that was Harp's country.

Not a chill, northern landscape, a forbidding stone vault, a hill where snow would drift and lie late, the sun come wanly if at all. But Steele Dunlap was in charge. He had taken over with arrogance and he ignored every suggestion or protest, highhandedly. So that Harp, who had hated death and feared it was made the center of an ornate glorification of it. Flowers filled the room where he lay. And Moran went patiently up and down the service elevator with armfuls of paper and empty boxes.

McCullough had only a moment alone with Harp and it seemed to him then that Harp's mouth was a little drawn with a trace of the old mocking grin; that Harp himself was a little amused by Dunlap's strutting condescension, his airs and importance. Harp's hands lay, gray and changed, across a stiff white vest, and on an impulse McCullough lifted the left hand and slipped off the big blue diamond ring from the finger where, for so long as he had known Harp, it had shone.

Storm, he thought, might like to have that ring. Undoubtedly Harp would want her to have it. He crossed the dead hands again so that the absence of the ring would not be noticed and later when he was alone he took the jewel from his pocket and looked at it.

The mounting was old fashioned and heavy and had probably been made originally for another stone. Inside, worn till the letters were only dimly discernible, was a line of engraving.

H. G. From E. Forever.

Some woman had given that ring to Harp. Some deluded and devoted woman who did not know that for Harp Greenlee there had never been a forever.

He saw Storm at a distance, sitting pale faced beside Beatrice Abney, while a great and good bishop intoned the service and made a brief eulogy of Harp, and Lank Parrish twitched uneasily on a stiff chair, buttoning and unbuttoning the white gloves he had been bullied into wearing. Lank had balked at being a pallbearer, tried to get out of attending the funeral at all.

"You know Harp wouldn't go himself, if it wasn't his own funeral! Remember the time Bart Williams' wife died, and Harp ordered up that big expensive wreath all the way from El Paso, but he wouldn't go to the church? Old man Williams used to ride out to that cemetery every night and water that wreath, trying to keep it alive. I saw him there once, standing kind of bent over and his face all broken up. He says, 'I wish she could have seen them posies.'"

And then it was over, the dreary business, and Dunlap was being a martinet, marshaling them all out of the cemetery.

"Go back to the apartment, McCullough," he ordered, "there are a number of things to be settled and there's no use waiting."

"You don't want me, do you?" Lank inquired hopefully.

"Hardly think we'll need you, Parrish."

"Then," said Lank, as he climbed into the sleek, black car beside Mac. "I'm going back to Texas. Maybe I won't have any job there, but I'll have my old pants there and my paint hoss and room to get a breath of air. I reckon you won't be coming back to San Mateo for a little while, Mac?"

"Not for a few days."

Not until he had seen Storm again, not till he had talked to her, persuaded her to listen. Not till he had made every effort to solve the strange mystery that made her wretched—and not till he knew what was to be the future of San Mateo and of Dan McCullough.

Storm had been whirled away in a car with Beatrice Abney. McCullough had had only a glimpse of her, and she was not in the group that gathered in the big living room of Harp's apartment, where the heavy perfume of the flowers was still oppressive.

Dunlap seemed to be disturbed because she was not there. He made several telephone calls, returning each time looking exasperated and baffled. He paced the room, snapping a rubber band on the handful of stiff, legal looking papers he carried, he stood at the window patting his foot and frowning.

Moran went around, still on tiptoe, as he had walked since death had come into the place, passing glasses of wine on a silver tray. McCullough looked over the other people in the group Dunlap had gathered. Two young men from Harp's office, an older man who had had the gray look of law and finance about him, Maggie Herron in her black dress sitting uncertainly very straight in her chair.

Dunlap gave the rubber band a final irritated flip.

"I think we won't wait any longer," he said. "This business should be concluded promptly. The other persons interested can be informed."

With the help of Moran he arranged a scene briskly, chairs in a half circle, a dramatic circle of empty space for himself. McCullough decided that this nervous haste of Dunlap's might be caused by the fear that Gertrude would put in an appearance. She had stayed very late the night before, Moran had told him.

"She said we would hear from her again, Mr. Mac. But I took the liberty to tell her that the funeral would be on Saturday, instead of Friday. So probably she will show up tomorrow."

"Good work, Moran," Mac had commended his cleverness, "there's nothing she can do to embarrass any one tomorrow."

Dunlap fronted the group now with an opened blue paper in his hand. All the lamps had been lighted and the planes of Dunlap's face looked more metallic than ever. He looked somehow as tho he had been cast in bas-relief, as tho he knew the effect he made and was proud of it.

He cleared his throat and began to read slowly, with a sensuous savoring of the pompous legal phrases.

"I, Harper Madison Greenlee, being of sound and disposing mind, do hereby make, and devise, this my last will and testament——"

Because he was so tired and nervestrung, the stiff phrases affected Dan McCullough like a drug. His mind grew numb and wandered and he jerked it back to awareness with difficulty at the sound of his own name.

"To Dan McCullough, my horse, my silver mounted saddle, and $1,000 in cash."

Short Skirt Is Prerogative of Young Women

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

The more we see of the extremely short-skirted older woman, the more convinced are we that certain things belonging to youth should be held inviolate by youth's mamma and aunties, the abbreviated skirt heading the list of youth's prerogatives.

Why do something, why wear anything that produces snickers when a couple of inches more cloth at the skirt hem would prevent them? And why, O why, in this era of concealment of faulty feature, the better to promote one's good ones, will members of our sex expose a knee-length view of underpinnings that would be far better half concealed, at least?

Why blindly follow a fashion that proves to be no fashion whatever when it exposes a liability, or a pair of them? It isn't good sense. One sees dumpy little women, who ought to thank the powers-that-be for an extra swatch of material to give a bit more figure elongation, cutting height appreciably with the kiltie length skirt. And one sees large women with pedal supports that, altho sturdy, never were meant to be flaunted brazenly from knee to heel. And always one sees in the offending skirt brevities that ugly back-of-the-leg line that would be far better kept hidden from the eye.

Why not look at this skirt length with a bit of the conservatism you observe toward other youth behaviorisms? You don't get out on a dance floor and make a monkey of yourself shagging or rhumbaing with youth's abandon. You don't giggle hysterically, dash hither and yon with the carefree abandon of youth. So why take over the skirt length that the very young women adopt as they may a number of extremes, simply because they have the youth to carry it?

★ THRU THE LOOKING GLASS ★

We're rather a disillusioned, embittered woman on the subject of hand lotions. We have tried so many—and found so many wanting!

Which is why we pounce on a good lotion when we find it—and run like mad to the nearest housetop to shout about it. Nothing irritates us like the kind of hand cream or lotion that has an immediate softening effect but, in the long run, seems to sacrifice all its lasting benefits by the very fact that it is quick drying and deceptively soothing for the moment. There are such, as you probably know.

But we think we've found a honey. Seems to us it came to the beauty market last year, rather late in the winter season. We used it for a short period—too short to tell. But we got the bottle out early this winter and have been giving it a good workout ever since. It's extra special as a lotion.

It's a creamy liquid, with a divine fragrance. We remember, when we first sniffed it, hoping devoutly that it would be as good as it smelled. And we really think it is. It's to be used after each hand washing and drying, just a few drops spread not too generously. It dries ever so quickly, but in the drying doesn't leave that tightened-up feeling that some lotions do. And, in our experience, it's been a tremendous help in keeping the hand skin smooth, despite cold weather and the indifferent soaps we often have to use in quick clean-ups.

As hand lotions go, this isn't the least expensive you can find. But it's awfully, awfully good. The faintly pink liquid seems to have what it takes to counteract the drying effect of numerous hand washings in the course of a day.

It's a shame that the average American goes breakfastless, or almost so. High school students, business girls, and men have almost universally acquired the bad habit of allowing so little time between getting up and getting out of the house in the morning that breakfast consists of gulped fruit juice or coffee and a piece of toast. This is hard on dispositions and general health as well.

Almost the only good breakfast eaters are children whose mothers sit over them until the last bite of cereal has disappeared "down the little red lane." And it's a situation about which something should be done.

What we need is a campaign for bigger, better, and more leisurely breakfasts. I'm sure we'd all feel and behave better if we'd get up early enough to eat a breakfast which included fruit juice and hot cereal, preferably a whole grain cereal.

Many breakfast cereals are being fortified with extra vitamins these days, making them even more valuable from a dietary standpoint than they were in the first place. The prepared breakfast foods, as well as the to-be-cooked ones, are being thus improved.

It's a good plan to alternate hot cooked cereal with ready-to-eat ones to get around breakfast monotony, which is one of the contributing factors in breakfast neglect. It isn't necessary to serve a cereal breakfast food every morning. If bacon and eggs are on the menu, or if there are waffles, the breakfast food may not be needed. But one should be served at least three or four times a week, perhaps oftener if there are growing children in the family.

Here is a sample week of nutritious breakfasts which are recommended for the average family consisting of both adults and children.

WEEK OF NUTRITIOUS WINTER BREAKFASTS.

SUNDAY: Orange juice, cream of wheat cereal with dates and top milk, broiled crisp bacon, whole wheat toast, milk for children, coffee for adults.

MONDAY: Stewed figs, prepared cereal with top milk, scrambled eggs, cornmeal muffins, milk for children, coffee for adults.

TUESDAY: Grapefruit, oatmeal with raisins and top milk, bacon or baked link sausages, toast, milk for children, coffee for adults.

WEDNESDAY: Tomato juice, cornmeal mush with top milk, soft cooked eggs, toast, milk for children, coffee for adults.

SATURDAY: Orange juice, oatmeal with brown sugar and top milk, bacon omelet, whole wheat toast, milk for children, coffee for adults.

Interesting House Dress

WOMAN'S AND MISS' HOUSE FROCK.

We know of no reason why a house dress should be drab, uninteresting, and unfeminine. To prove our point we've designed a model with all the smartness of a street dress. In fact, this house frock is pretty enough to go south in vacation luggage. The trimming is lace or ruffling, and buttons are both decorative and useful down the front of this princess model. If you like, use the same pattern for a street costume.

Style No. 2778 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 39 inch material, with 1¾ yards of ruffling.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

For 15 cents buy the winter Chicago Tribune book of Clotilde Fashions on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower; 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to the New York address above.

The investigation of slam possibilities is, by its very nature, often a risky process since, if the partners decide to drop the bidding at five spades or five hearts, they find themselves facing just one more hurdle without the prospect of reward. Nevertheless, such contracts are unavoidable from time to time. In these cases expert play may be required to pull the chestnuts out of the fire.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
4 spades	Pass	5 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

South felt that his spade suit was not quite solid enough for an opening three bid. In this he was wrong. Such a suit should be counted as within one trick of solid. When North showed some strength with the two heart bid, South then changed his mind and decided that the spade suit was solid enough virtually to guarantee game. North, holding three plus honor tricks, was reluctant to sign off at game, and his slam invitation could not be criticized. South, however, figured that the certainly would be off one ace, since North had not used the four-five no trump convention and, therefore, felt that discretion would be the better part of valor.

West opened the diamond king and, when his partner played the deuce, shifted to the eight of hearts, dummy winning with the king. Obviously, the contract could have been made easily by declarer's guessing the spade situation and finessing the queen, but with nine in the two hands he, not unnaturally, tried to drop the queen. When, on the second round, West showed out, two different lines of play presented themselves. One was to attempt the discard of the losing heart by finessing against the queen of clubs; the other, which appealed much more strongly, was to play for a squeeze.

East was presented with his spade trick and, in the hope of obtaining the setting trick on the spot, returned a diamond. Declarer ruffed and ran off every spade but one. He then cashed dummy's ace of hearts and returned to his hand with the ace of clubs.

At this point declarer had one trump, one heart and one club. Dummy had the diamond queen and the king-jack of clubs. West had the diamond ace and two clubs, and East the heart queen and the Q-9 of clubs. The play of the last trump now effected a double squeeze. Since West had to keep the high diamond and East the high heart, it did not matter who held the club queen, because neither could hold more than one club. West had to let go a club, to protect the diamond ace, whereupon dummy discarded a diamond. East then had to blank the club queen to keep the high heart. The fulfilling tricks then were taken by the king and jack of clubs.

Universal day—Seek solitude and quietness today.

Vocations—Those born on the 27th have two difficult numbers combined to make the expressive and all inclusive nine. This gives them an opportunity to rise very high, or do some universal service that benefits mankind, but it also gives them some difficulties in projecting themselves because of the retiring two and the diffident seven. They often have to learn thru difficulties. Theodore Roosevelt, who was born on Jan. 27, had to overcome ill health in his youth, and he was always fighting to get his ideas over. President Grant, Julia Ward Howe, and Kaiser Wilhelm were among those who had their difficulties in bringing out universal expression. Franchot Tone, Marlene Dietrich, John Boles, and Louis Bromfield were all born on the 27th, and each has to learn thru trial and error how to reach that universality which nine demands.

Finds Bargains in Dresses for Career Girls

BY REA SEEGER.

When a simple daytime dress is dull, it's unspeakably dull; when it's smooth and distinctive it's worth its weight in gold. There's one superior collection with such modest price marks that veteran shoppers have been known to gasp. Soft feminine wool in flattering colors, pastels, monotones, or the more vivid shades provide all the necessary lure for extra pennies. Details that usually only detail expensive models, such as clever pockets, finished seaming, plaits, bows, interesting necklines, and a necessary simpleness that makes for unobtrusive "oomph," mark all the finds in this particular showing.

There's one honey made of pale beige soft wool that could go places north or south under mink coats or under tweed topcoats. It has a little girl round neckline to the smoothly cut blouse top, a flared skirt with a front concealed plait and four of the smartest pockets ever patched to skirt or blouse top. That's all, but it's plenty.

Another dull black find has the two piece smartly flared skirt, with a plait and a short sleeved jacket-blouse top, and white buttons for contrast. It's the find of the week, for it has a very modest price tag and it definitely hints of spring in the outline and style. Comes in a good color range, too.

If you crave a softer detailed dress you'll like the slick little finds that have shirred details and gathers perfectly placed without overdoing everything. Powder pinks and blues, lots of dusky gold shades, putty beige and gray, blinding reds, popular navy blues, and a few flattering parma violet tints provide enough colors to satisfy every one.

Some of the price marks hover around 10 dollars, few zoom above the 15 dollar limit. And every model is a perfect find for immediate wear . . . later for spring with or without a jacket or furs. Career girls especially will appreciate this collection!

Chivalry Has Place in Life of the Child

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

Sportingness and protectiveness, and what we sometimes call "chivalry," are qualities we all admire in both children and grownups, but they are not necessarily natural to boys and girls. They really are attitudes that have to be taught over a period of years, chiefly by parents. If we notice our children getting into ways that are contrary to these ideas, we must not consider them cruel or poor sports, but realize that a certain education in dealing with other children has not yet been completed.

If, for instance, we want our children to be chivalrous we have to implant and foster that quality while they are young. Ordinarily we pair knighthood and chivalry in our minds and connect the latter only with men, but chivalry is something that a girl, as well as a boy, may practice. It is one of the gentler graces, but if the Crusaders could embrace its principles it need not be beneath a boy.

When older and younger children play together is one time when both boys and girls can be taught to be chivalrous. Children often seem really mean to each other, but that is usually only because their imagination doesn't operate on a situation. I have seen boys do what looked like dreadful things to younger children, when all they were actually doing was getting a lot of kick out of the excitement of the yells, or the surprise, or the funny faces the youngsters made when they howled!

The advantage they take and the real pain they inflict have to be explained to them again and again for them to get it. It is here that, besides being negative and prevailing upon them to stop, it is well to be positive and make them feel that, instead of tormenting them, they should protect the younger children.

Only Youth Can Give Young Girl Happy Marriage

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

How we humans kick over the applecart for the apparent pleasure of seeing what shambles we can create!

How else can one explain a girl of 19, with a devoted swain of 21 for whom the girl claims to care deeply, yet who insists on messing her life with a side attraction, a married man with three children. We gather that the married man infatuation is bound up with a pity for him, as his wife is a mental invalid and his case, apparently, is a troubled one. But what on earth should a 19 year old girl of normal mentality be doing acting as the buffer for a sorrow that is none of her affair, and never should be? The married man's trouble is something outside and apart from this young woman's life and her future. Yes, she may feel sorry for the man's children, but still it is not a 19 year old's business to let even them come between her and the legitimate romance offered by the boy two years her senior.

Pity is no rock upon which to build a successful union, not even when the pair are contemporaries in years. Some young women, we know, nurse a twisted sense of something or other, martyrdom, perhaps, which can only explain an entanglement such as our young woman correspondent presents. Indeed, we'd call it a definite mental sickness on her part. And when her young man serves notice on our correspondent that if she sees the married man again, he is thru with her, we hope, for the girl's sake, she understands that he means it.

FREISINGER LOSES NATIONAL SKATING CROWN

HAWKS DEFEAT RANGERS, 4 TO 1, BEFORE 16,608

Maintain Mastery Over New Yorkers.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Blackhawks last night delighted 16,608 hockey addicts in Chicago Stadium by reasserting their startling supremacy over the world champion New York Rangers, 4 to 1. The Hawks have whipped the champs four times and tied them once in five games this season. Their margin last night would have been one goal greater if Referee M. [Aunt Kate] Ion hadn't become befuddled on a counter by Phil Hergesheimer near the close of the second period.

Ion allowed the goal, skated around the rink in confusion after the tally and assists had been officially announced, then decided some one had interfered with Goalie Dave Kerr and disallowed the goal, overruling himself and Goal Judge Joe Boyle.

12th Hawk Victory.

Chicago tally accomplishers were Cully Dahlstrom and Bill Thoms in the first period, and George Allen and Hergesheimer in the third period. Bill Carse and Doug Bentley each reaped two assist points, and Allen, Pep Kelly, Bob Carse and Johnny Chad one each.

The Hawks now have won 12 games, lost 11 and tied six and last night increased their hold on fourth place.

Both Blackhawk goals in the first period were on well planned and executed maneuvers. Dahlstrom scored in 2:33 of the opening session after a trip down the middle of the rink. Bentley gained possession of the rubber in his own defense zone and Dahlstrom took over on neutral ice. Cully went across the middle of the New York blue line and headed straight for the cage.

When the defense men spread out to protect against Hergesheimer, who had rushed into the mouth of the cage, Dahlstrom shot between them to hit Goalie Kerr's boots. He then plunged thru to take the rebound and sock it home for the game's first counter.

Carse Executes Carom.

The second Chicago score was one of those simple but perfect maneuvers everybody could follow in detail.

Bob Carse, on getting possession of the puck in his own defense zone, caromed it off a New York stick across his own blue line. Chad picked it up six feet from the Chicago blue line, skated across neutral ice and, as he crossed the New York blue line, passed to his left across the rink to Thoms, who was under a full head of steam. Bill picked up the pass perfectly, carried it for several rapid strides, then beat Goalie Kerr with a high slanting shot. The time was 13:13 and Bob Carse and Chad earned assists.

The Hawks' 2 to 0 lead stood up till the 15 minute mark in the second period when Bryan Hextall scored for the visitors while Red Mackay and Kilby MacDonald were in the penalty box.

The play was moving back and forth, and when Pep Kelly missed a pass from Doug Bentley on what seemed an excellent scoring opportunity, Babe Pratt picked up the disc and carried it down the rink for a pass to Hextall, who tallied on a carom off the goal post.

Allen Scores in Mêlée.

Six seconds before the close of the second period that phantom goal was announced for the Hawks.

The third Chicago goal was made by Allen out of a mêlée around the New York cage in 9:44 of the final period. And 17 seconds before the end of the contest Hergesheimer won some solace from Referee Ion's earlier whimsy by banging home a goal that wasn't challenged.

SEVEN NIGHTS IN A BALL PARK! LIST SOX HOME DATES

South Siders Appear in Lamplit Debut June 4.

Dykes Picks Indians

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 26—(AP).—Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Chicago White Sox, predicted tonight that the Cleveland Indians will win the 1941 American league baseball pennant.

The No. 2 team will be the New York Yankees, said Dykes as he left for Chicago where he will stop a day or two before continuing on to Pasadena, Cal. And as for Detroit's defending champions—

"The Tigers will do good to stay in third place back of the Yankees," Dykes declared, "especially if they lose Hank Greenberg by June."

Dykes picked Boston for fourth place, his own White Sox for fifth, followed by St. Loui., Washington, and Philadelphia.

[SCHEDULE ON NEXT PAGE.]

You may now set aside the seven evenings on which you will attend 1941 night games in Comiskey park. The American league schedule, released today, reveals the dates for the seven home lamplit games to be played by the White Sox, along with all other dates for the 77 home games.

Here are the night games:

June 4 with Philadelphia.
June 12 with New York.
July 2 with Detroit.
July 10 with Washington.
July 17 with Boston.
Aug. 15 with Cleveland.
Sept. 5 with St. Louis.

The Sox also will play four night games away from home; in Cleveland on June 27, in Philadelphia on July 30, in St. Louis on Aug. 5 and in Washington on Sept. 9. Washington in 1941 will have night baseball for the first time.

Memorial day is the only holiday on which the Sox will play at home, but there will be games on 11 Saturdays and 12 Sundays.

Return on April 11.

Jimmy Dykes and his boys will return from their road exhibition tour with the Cubs on April 11 and will play in Wrigley field that day. They will be in Comiskey park on April 12 and move back to Wrigley field the next day. Then they take off for Cleveland, where they open the season on April 15. They expect to face Bob Feller on April 15 and hope to do better than they did against him in the season opener in Comiskey park last spring. On that occasion, you'll remember, they made no hits and lost, 1 to 0.

The Chicago American league opening will be on Friday April 18 with the St. Louis Browns the attraction. The Browns will linger thru Saturday and Sunday, after which the Sox will move to Detroit for three games with the Champion Detroit Tigers.

Senators in Town April 29.

The first invasion of Chicago by eastern clubs will begin on April 29, with the Washington Senators. The Yankees will be here May 2 and 3 and the Athletics May 4, 5, and 6. The Boston Red Sox will be here May 7 and 8. The Chicagoans will be in Detroit on July 4 and in Cleveland on Labor day.

Back to the Farm? John Would Like to Win Golden Glove First

BY WILFRID SMITH.

John Kiraly, 18 years old, from Catawba, Wis., and four of his high school chums—all graduated from the county seat school in Phillips, Wis., last June—are in Chicago. "We just lit out to see the big city," is the way John describes it. His visit will include an attempt to win a Golden Glove.

John and his buddies live at 4655 Kenmore avenue. He's employed as a bus boy from 8 a. m. until 5 p. m., except Thursday, at O'Connell's restaurant, 538 Diversey parkway. Except for the rush hours John says it's not a bad job by any means. It also enables him to continue his sightseeing in Chicago as well as his Golden Gloves battles.

An Escape from the Cows.

Young Kiraly, Hungarian by race and an American by birth, also may have wished to escape, at least temporarily, from the job of assistant custodian of his father's 16 cows. The elder Kiraly operates a dairy farm at Catawba and while John has five sisters—four older than he—he is the only boy in the family. This situation undoubtedly nominated him long ago for the farm chores.

John's friendly smile when accused of shirking farm chores convinced his interviewer that he was seeking relief from monotonous tasks as well as beginning his own adventures in the city of which he had heard so much and knew so little. So far all is golden and that may eventually include an amateur boxing championship.

An Excellent Athlete.

Young Kiraly is one of the best athletes entering novice Golden Gloves. He played football and basketball in high school and was captain of his team in the latter sport. At the age of 15 he became interested in boxing when that sport was introduced in Catawba by Father Martriner. John hasn't had experience except in friendly training bouts, but this has been sufficient to arouse his interest.

He admitted he would like to discover just how much ability he really has. "Not that I want to become a professional boxer," he told us, "unless I find I am real good. I studied science and mathematics in high school and I'd like to go on to college."

Right now, after five weeks in Chicago, John approves highly of our town. He is proving he can take care of himself, is having a fine time at the task, and would like to surprise his family with an amateur boxing title.

C. Y. O. Boxers Report Tonight.

The first group of Golden Gloves candidates will report tonight at 6:30 o'clock in the Catholic Youth organization gymnasium, 31 East Congress street, for physical examinations. These boys are registered with the C. Y. O. When they received instructions to report they also received parental consent cards. These cards must be presented tonight and they must be signed by parent or guardian.

Boxers who pass the rigid tests of the physicians tonight and on Thursday night in Trafton's gymnasium may choose the tournament in which they wish to compete. Experienced boxers must compete in the city championship bouts in the Coliseum Feb. 17, 18, and 19. Winners there will enter the Tournament of Champions.

There are two novice tournaments. The first of these will be held Feb. 4, 5, and 6 in St. Sabina's gymnasium, 78th place and Racine avenue. The north side tournament will be held in Loyola university gymnasium Feb. 10, 11, and 12. Entrants today and tomorrow will be assigned to the Thursday examination and thus may choose between the novice tournaments.

Brings Punch to City

JOHN KIRALY.

Indiana Plays Michigan; Ohio at Minnesota

While it is almost a certainty that Indiana university's basketball men will resume their championship march tonight at Michigan after a two weeks' vacation, even the most loyal Hoosier fans are becoming apprehensive over the surging drive of Wisconsin's Badgers. Saturday night in the Badger fieldhouse, after a stern battle in the first half, Wisconsin roared to a smashing 46 to 31 victory over Ohio State, previously undefeated in Western conference competition.

Ohio State, with victories over Michigan, Northwestern, and Chicago, had shared top honors with Indiana, which has beaten Illinois and Northwestern. Now that Wisconsin has overwhelmed Ohio State, some may point out that the Buckeyes' three conference victories were registered against teams which, until last Saturday, had a composite Big Ten record of 1 victory and 11 defeats. Northwestern trounced Michigan, 45 to 34, Saturday, and climbed into eighth position over the Wolverines.

Maroons in Cellar.

Chicago's Maroons are in tenth place, and their next game is against Iowa a week from tonight. Chicago lost its annual engagement with De Paul Saturday night in the university fieldhouse, 37 to 32.

The Hoosiers' advantage is that including tonight's game they have nine conference engagements in the same period of time that Wisconsin plays six games. Moreover, because Wisconsin already has established superiority over Iowa, Purdue, Michigan, Chicago, and Ohio State, the schedule seems to favor the Badgers. High points are Illinois at Madison, Purdue at Lafayette, Minnesota at Madison [the Gophers whipped Wisconsin in the opening game], and, of course, the Indiana-Wisconsin clash Feb. 24 in Bloomington, Ind. This can be the decisive battle of the campaign.

In the meantime, Indiana may be immediately concerned over the home series with Purdue. The first game is scheduled Saturday night and while the Boilermakers apparently do not have a squad equal to that which won the 1940 Big Ten title, an Indiana-Purdue battle always is a contest apart. Purdue was beaten twice by Indiana last year but won the championship when Indiana lost to Minnesota, Northwestern, and Ohio State.

Hoosiers Play Buckeyes Twice.

The Buckeyes' 44 to 26 victory over Indiana in Columbus on Feb. 26 last year, when that defeat eventually cost the Hoosiers a share of the title, is reason for additional concern. The Hoosiers have a pair of games with Ohio State coming up.

Ohio State and three other conference teams have suffered one defeat. Theoretically, Ohio State, Illinois, and Iowa, as well as Wisconsin, are challengers to Indiana's leadership. Whether Ohio State will crack completely may be found out tonight when the Buckeyes face Minnesota in Minneapolis. The Gophers usually are much better on their own court, and for that matter, Michigan is the only foe Ohio State has defeated on tour.

The remainder of this week's schedule involves several nonconference contests preliminary to the six game Big Ten program next week. Purdue is host to Detroit tomorrow night. The University of Mexico is scheduled at Illinois the following night and on Thursday Loyola meets the University of Chicago. Millikin at Iowa and Ohio State at Butler on Saturday conclude this list.

DAVIS, FASTEST RUNNER, WALKS—BUT IN HIS SLEEP

And Speed Is Cardinal Sin in His Home Town.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 26 (AP).—Harold Davis, who runs as fast as a deer when he's awake, walks in his sleep and comes from Morgan Hill, where speed is practically a cardinal sin, left today for New York City.

Dominic DiMaggio, who carved himself a slice of baseball glory last year in his first season as a major leaguer, leaves tomorrow for Boston.

The trips are events in the lives of the two youngsters, both destined to write their names boldly on the pages of athletic history. Take their cases in sequence.

He's World's Fastest.

Davis is heir apparent to the title of world's fastest human. He won the National A. A. U. 100 meter championship in 10.3 seconds and the 220 meter crown in 20.4 last year. In addition he set the national junior college records for 100 yards, 100 meters, 220 yards, and 200 meters in 1940.

As a student at Salinas Junior college he was America's sprint sensation last season. He is at the same school this year and in 1942 is expected to wind up at the University of California.

Davis will be seen in action at the Millrose games, New York, Feb. 1 and in the Boston A. A. meet, Feb. 8, his first crack at big time indoor competition. Eastern track fans may be disappointed. The youngster is a notoriously slow starter and the most powerful finisher in the history of California track meets.

His chief rival will be Norman Ewell, Penn State Negro. Davis ran away from Ewell in the outdoor meets last year. In short sprints on the boards he may be left at the post by Ewell who gets away quicker than the smoke from the starting gun.

Davis who is 20 years old, eats, talks and sleeps sprint. On trips, his coach, Lloyd Winter, sleeps in the same room with Davis—with his bed in front of the window. At any time Davis is likely to walk, and sometimes run, while still in the snoozing stage. His home town, Morgan Hill, is considered one of the toughest municipalities on speeders in the state.

One of baseball's mightiest little men of 1940, younger brother Dominic of the redoubtable New York Yankees' Joe, takes off tomorrow. At Boston, Jan. 30, he will be awarded a trophy voted him by Boston sports writers as the outstanding rookie player of the year.

Prefers Feller to Speech.

Dominic, who has spent the winter helping operate brother Joe's restaurant, is preparing a nifty speech to make at the trophy presentation banquet. "I would rather face Bobby Feller with a 3 to 2 count and the fast one coming," he admitted.

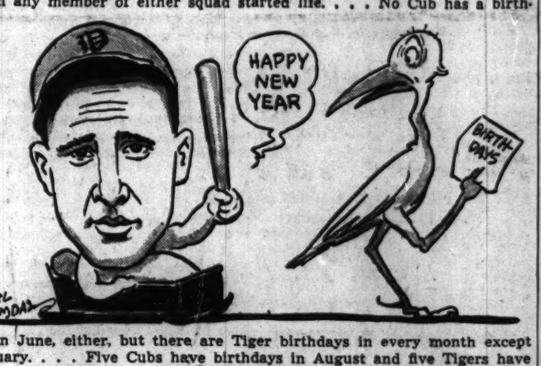
Altho he hasn't engaged in athletic activities since last baseball season, Dominic topped the scales at 175 pounds today, only a couple of pounds over his playing weight.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

A. J. LEWANDOWSKI, University of Nebraska basketball coach, defends the rules and the officials against the charge that there is too much whistle tooting. . . . "When you play basketball," he says, "you don't want to play football. If a player is not fast enough to stay with his opponent without fouling, he's not fast enough to play the game." . . . Henry P. Edwards, director of the American league's publicity bureau, recalls that the late Jack Leliveit, manager of the Seattle club at the time of his death, made 11 hits in his first 11 times at bat as a pinch hitter for the Cleveland Indians. . . . All dropped just over the shortstop's head. . . . Opponents devised the strategy of moving the left fielder close behind the shortstop and they caught his next two drives. . . . Ceferino Garcia, former New York middleweight champion, who is 34, is one of the oldest active boxers. . . . When his Macomb Teachers basketball team tied a game with Iowa State Teachers in the last 40 seconds, Coach Ray Hanson fainted and did not see his captain sink the winning basket in the last 9 seconds. . . . Revived with smelling salts, Coach Hanson wanted to know who won, and when told his team had squeezed out a victory, he fainted again. . . . It is unofficially reported that Mr. Hanson will be glad to swoon any time under similar circumstances. . . . Ray Blades, new manager of the New Orleans club, has bought a plane in which to go rookie hunting. . . . Mike Enich, Iowa tackle and captain, missed only 23 minutes of the seven games played by the Hawkeyes last fall. . . . It's quite a trip from Palo Alto to Poughkeepsie, and despite its share of the Rose Bowl receipts, Stanford can't see its way clear to adopt rowing on an intercollegiate basis. . . . Al Masters, Stanford's graduate manager, estimates it would take $50,000 annually to put the Indians on the Hudson. . . . The University of California spends approximately $35,000 a year on rowing. . . .

The first 1941 rosters published in each major league, those of the Cubs in the National and the Tigers in the American, reveal that while February is the month the players start work, it is not the month in which any member of either squad started life. . . . No Cub has a birthday in June, either, but there are Tiger birthdays in every month except February. . . . Five Cubs have birthdays in August and five Tigers have birthdays in March. . . . Hank Greenberg was born on New Year's day; Charlie George, Cub rookie catcher, on Christmas day; Lou Novikoff on Columbus day, and Charley Root on St. Patrick's day. . . . Murray Franklin, Tiger rookie infielder, arrived on April Fool's day, and Bob Henriksen, the Cubs' new pitcher, on May day. . . . Larry French of the Cubs and Pat Mullen of the Tigers were born on Nov. 1. . . . All of this probably is deeply significant to astrologers, but frankly it doesn't mean a thing to this department.



Paradox.

Men are especially canny creatures.
They can manage a steal
In a big business deal,
But dumb little lasses
With a few cagey passes
Maneuver them right to the preacher's.

Thought for the Day.

In Europe men are dropping bombs on helpless women and children, ruthlessly setting fire to hospitals, and bending every human energy toward the accomplishment of havoc and ruin. Over here, Chicago firemen, assisted by several volunteers, risked their lives the other day to rescue a little puppy which somehow had got marooned on a cake of ice that was floating down the river. There, my friends, is something to think about.

Ode to a Typewriter.

Instrument of my despair,
Frankly, you get in my hair.
I must sit and make you clatter
While my hips grow slowly fatter.
Just when there is most to do
You always strip a gear or two;
I would like to wring your neck,
But I need that weekly check.

It Takes All Kinds.

While the clerk of draft board No. 2, Watseka, Ill., was in the midst of her bath Saturday night, the telephone rang and she ran down two flights of stairs to answer it.

Voice: "You're on the draft board, aren't you?"

She: "Yes."

Voice: "How many teeth does a draftee have to have before he is accepted?"

She: "Twelve—six masticators and six biters."

Voice: "Thank you. I was just working my crossword puzzle and wanted to finish it."

—Dorothy Long, clerk.

A Reminder.

Some years ago we hated the kaiser,
But that's long ago, now we are wiser.
We hated so well that we sent our boys
Over the sea like a shipment of toys,
Toys for the mongers to wind and start;
We, too, at home were given our part,
Hate more, give more, make the world free.
We all know the outcome, the world isn't free,
And the gent whom we hated and thought of with scorn
Is a peaceful old man now living in Doorn.

McBride Faces Maxin Tonight at Marigold

Joe Maxin, who won the 1940 Chicagoland Golden Gloves and National A. A. U. middleweight championships last year, will meet Frank McBride, competent south side boxer, in an eight round bout in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, tonight. The agreed weight is 175 pounds.

Additional interest is focused on an eight round secondary feature between Elza Thompson, 1937 Indianapolis sectional Golden Gloves heavyweight winner, and Willie Snell, 1939 Illinois Athletic club amateur champ.

Another eight round event and two matches of four rounds complete the card. Lou Thomas, Indianapolis fighter, is paired with Orlando Trotter, also a former I. A. C. title holder, in the eight rounder.

The four rounders match Jimmy Pierce with Leif Erickson and Tony Vino with Johnny Rozina.

Karol Krauser, Polish heavyweight wrestler, and Dizzy Davis, who enjoyed themselves in an earlier meeting, will meet in a return bout in White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, tonight. Abe Coleman faces Paul Bozzell, Gene Bowman encounters Al Williams, Ad Goebbels opposes Frank Hill, and Walter Palmer meets Kid Chapman.

Billy Marquart, Winnipeg, Man., lightweight, and Davey Day, who were given a rest yesterday, will resume training in Trafton's gymnasium this afternoon for an important 10 round bout in the Coliseum next Monday. The survivor will be in line for a title match against Lew Jenkins and Sammy Angott, rival championship claimants.

Both showed to advantage in Saturday's drills. Day went four rounds with Tito Taylor, knocking down the welterweight sparmate with a right to the head in the first round.

Marquart later dropped Al Jackson, who like Day is a rangy boxer, in the first round.

Tiff Denton, the lank Kansas Citian, yesterday horned in on Johnny Layton night as the first two weeks of the world's three cushion billiard tournament came to an end in Bensinger's arena.

The 18 contestants were paying tribute to one of their fallen members, Johnny Layton, pooling their share of the gate receipts to help pay for his hospitalization. Layton was struck by a street car on the near north side more than a month ago. Receipts, including contributions from fans, were $1,250. The full amount will go to Layton.

Denton, however, was in no mellow mood for his match with Welker Cochran, the suave Californian and one of the favorites to unseat the defending champion, Willie Hoppe. The Missourian dealt Cochran his first defeat of the tournament, 50 to 44, in 48 innings. Each had runs of nine.

Hoppe, prevented from starting the championship grind because of illness, will make his debut tomorrow. He appeared with the other players last night as they went thru their répertoire of fancy shots. Score by innings:

PROPOSE WAYS FOR SOLVING OF ARMS PROBLEMS

State Trade Groups Offer Program.

Resolutions dealing with national defense and war emergency problems were agreed upon yesterday by delegates to the annual meeting of the Associated State Chambers of Commerce as common ground for cooperation by state chambers of commerce thruout the country in supporting national legislation. The meeting was held in the Palmer House.

The group recommended to the federal government that no new social programs be enacted "during the present war emergency."

The organization proposed also that the government encourage the buying of preparedness bonds by the public after a fashion similar to the Liberty Loan campaigns of the world war.

Other Proposals Made.

It favored continuance of the Dies committee which has been investigating subversive activities, and suggested amendment of the national labor relations act "to separate the functions of adjudication from those of investigation and prosecution."

"We recommend," read the latter resolution, "that there be established a code of unfair labor practices for both employers and employés, and that employers be given the privilege of publicly presenting their views on labor disputes without fear of punishment."

Provision for a mandatory waiting period before a strike or lockout could be called in labor disputes was urged by the associated chambers. Delegates expressed disapproval of the St. Lawrence waterway.

ASKS LAKE FRONT AIRPORT.

Cairo, Ill., Jan. 26 (AP).—The Illinois Junior Chamber of Commerce adopted a resolution today favoring construction of a lake front airport at Chicago. It also asked establishment of a six man nonpartisan committee to govern the state department of conservation.

The resolution also recommended placing all department employé under civil service and establishment of a training school for game wardens.

Carl W. Feickert of Belleville, state president, presided.

STEEL MAKERS MOSTLY SOLD 3 MONTHS AHEAD

Cleveland, O., Jan. 26 (AP).—Steel mills are generally sold up thru April—their output contracted for three months ahead, the magazine Steel said today.

"Much business being placed on books may be so-called speculative business, tho it seems that by far the major share will prove purely legitimate coverage," the review said. "What had seemed speculative orders in late 1940 proved finally to have been thoroly warranted.

"Producers warn that much business being placed on the books is subject to priorities."

TELAUTOGRAPH.

The other day I saw a writing device made by TelAutograph in operation in a department store. Does the company sell the instrument or does it rent it out? Is TelAutograph stock listed on an exchange? What have been its earnings?—J. S.

Answer: TelAutograph corporation, New York, manufactures and leases electrical instruments for the facsimile transmission of handwriting in intercommunication systems. The company is charged with the maintenance and repair of the instruments.

Leases to industrial companies recently have accounted for an increasing share of TelAutograph's new business. In previous years banks, hotels, and credit bureaus were its principal customers.

The company's 226,600 shares of $5 par common stock are listed on the New York Stock exchange. Dividends have been paid on the stock consistently since 1925. Payments in 1940 totaled 20 cents a share. A dividend of 5 cents a share will be paid Feb. 1 to holders of record Jan. 22.

The company's earnings record in recent years follows:

	Net income.	Earned per share.	Dividends per share.
1935	$145,701	$0.64	$0.75
1936	134,455	0.59	0.60
1937	137,197	0.61	0.60
1938	114,515	0.51	0.50
1939	83,103	0.37	0.30

Net income in the first nine months of 1940 rose to $79,037, equal to 35 cents a share, compared with $56,639, or 25 cents a share, a year earlier.

CHINESE LOANS.

What recent loans has the United States made to China and what is the cumulative total of such credits?

—T. W.

Answer: Loans extended to the Chinese government by the United States in the last nine years total $259,000,000. Among these credits was a $9,000,000 loan in 1931 for wheat purchases in this country, $20,000,000 in 1933 for additional wheat and for cotton, and a $25,000,000 war loan in 1938.

Aside from these advances the Export-Import bank granted credits of $20,000,000 in March, 1940, and $25,000,000 in November. This was supplemented by a $50,000,000 credit in November which would be repaid from Chinese sales of metals to the Metals Reserve company of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The treasury department also set aside last November $50,000,000 from its stabilization fund to support Chinese currency. This, however, was not considered a loan.

ELECTRIC LIGHT BULB MONOPOLY SUIT TO BE FILED

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26 (AP).—Attorney General Jackson announced tonight that a suit charging 12 corporations with monopolizing the electric light bulb industry would be entered in federal court at Trenton, N. J., tomorrow.

The companies named defendants were: General Electric, International General Electric, and Westinghouse Electric, all of New York; Corning Glass and American Blank Co., Corning, N. Y.; Empire Machine, Portland, Me.; N. V. Philips' Gloeilampenfabrieken, Curaco, West Indies, and New York; Consolidated Electric Lamp, Danvers, Mass.; Hygrade Sylvania, Salem, Mass.; Ken-Rad Tube and Lamp, Owensboro, Ky.; Chicago Miniature Lamp, Chicago, and Tung-Sol Lamp Works, Inc., Newark, N. J.

Declares Prices Low.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 26 (AP).—Howard A. Couse, counsel for the lamp department of the General Electric company, tonight issued the following statement in connection with the government's announcement of an anti-trust suit, "Our price reduction of last June was the 20th reduction in 20 years. Electric lamp prices are now the lowest in history."

OTIS & CO. FILES PLEA FOR BIDS ON SECURITIES

Cleveland, O., Jan. 26 [Special].—Competitive bidding for new issues of public utility securities "will end the monopoly held by a few eastern investment bankers in the origination, management and underwriting of such securities," officials of Otis & Co., Cleveland investment bankers, asserted in a memorandum filed with the Securities and Exchange commission.

The company urged the commission to adopt a rule recently recommended by the utilities division of the SEC to require competitive bidding in the sale of new securities of registered utility holding companies and their subsidiaries.

AIRPLANE FUEL OUTPUT CAPACITY MUCH INCREASED

New York, Jan. 26 (AP).—A tremendous increase in the United States' capacity to produce 100 octane gasoline—the superaviation fuel—was reported today by the American Petroleum institute.

It said American refineries by March 1 would have a capacity of 550,000,000 gallons a year of the 100 octane fuel and that this capacity could be doubled within 12 or 14 months more thru the expenditure of $30,000,000 in new plants.

Six years ago 100 octane gas was a laboratory curiosity costing $30 a gallon.

EXPORTERS CUT CREDIT LOSSES TO SMALL SUM

Care in extending credit to customers abroad has reduced the credit losses of American manufacturing exporters to "negligible" proportions, the National Association of Credit Men announced yesterday. Losses resulting from fluctuations in foreign exchange rates also have been held to a minimum, the association's foreign credit interchange bureau said.

Of manufacturing companies cooperating in a survey, 42 per cent reported they had no credit losses during the 1937-'40 period covered by a questionnaire, the association said. Another 14 per cent said their losses were "too small to compute." Definite percentage figures were shown by 23 per cent of the manufacturers whose losses did not exceed ⅛ of 1 per cent in any of the four years covered by the survey.

DECLARE ARMS ORDERS TO BE FILLED ON TIME

New York, Jan. 26 [Special].—The National Association of Manufacturers in announcing the results of a nation-wide poll of manufacturers holding national defense contracts, asserted today that all except 7 per cent of the contracts will be filled on time.

This prospect was held out notwithstanding the fact that delays had been experienced by 67 per cent of the companies included in the survey. The government was blamed for most of the delay, occasioned by inspection techniques, changes in specifications, and delays in providing specifications. Materials shortages and inability to obtain required tools were other common causes of delay, the association said.

U.S. Fighting Man Must Get His Meat, Statistics Prove

The average fighting man in the United States army and navy eats more than 300 pounds of meat a year, compared with a civilian per capita consumption of 141 pounds, the American Meat institute reported yesterday. The institute said about 78,837,000 pounds of meat was delivered to the navy for 202,000 men during the latest 12 month period for which figures are available.

TRADE IN HOME FURNISHINGS UP 20 PCT. IN 1940

Gains Most in Late Months of Year.

Wholesale business in home furnishings was about 20 per cent larger in 1940 than in 1939, Percy Wilson, managing director of the Merchandise Mart, estimated yesterday on the basis of annual sales reports covering 2,765 lines of goods represented in the Mart.

Percy Wilson.

"The increase was recorded in spite of a slow start in the early months of 1940, when capital and trade worried over the outcome of the election, military draft regulations, defense problems, and foreign trade policies," Wilson said. "Home furnishings sales gradually gained momentum during the last six moths of the year as the national defense program took definite form and began to cause increased spending."

Reduce Number of Lines.

For the first time in 10 years numerous manufacturers of furniture reduced the number of items in their lines in December, and concentrated on production of goods which had proved to be best sellers, according to Wilson.

Sales in the houseware and appliance field as 1940 drew to a close were running about 31 per cent larger than a year earlier, the survey indicated. Among manufacturers in the home furnishings field, appliance makers reported the most difficulty in getting raw materials, as these producers tripled output in many instances in an effort to build up large inventories as a precautionary measure.

Lose Skilled Workers.

Wilson said loss of skilled craftsmen by the appliance industry had created a problem in that branch of manufacturing. Many such craftsmen are taking jobs in factories where orders for the national defense program are being filled, Wilson said.

Last year's sales of china, glass, and pottery by wholesalers were the largest in 10 years, and showed an increase of about 22 per cent over the 1939 volume, the survey showed.

British Bren gun carriers rolling up to the blasted shell of Fort Capuzzo, Italian stronghold in Libya near the Egyptian frontier. It was captured on Dec. 16 in the drive that carried the British thru Bardia and Tobruk and now to Derna.

Skiers and ice skaters walking thru deep snow in Lincoln park yesterday after the heaviest fall in the city in nearly two years. Transportation facilities were kept operating and thousands took advantage of the snow for a day of winter sport.
